In Washington.
That Beautiful Monument.
The President Hard at Work.
What Mr. Mellon Remembers.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WASHINGTON, May 9.

BEAUTIFUL WEATHER in this capital city, with a good deal of worry, not so beautiful. Here they are expected to correct and cure, overnight, industrial, financial, agricultural and employment ills that can be cured by time alone.

The city is beautiful and the new buildings that partially complete a great scheme of public improvement are well conceived, handsomely and efficiently constructed.

The Washington Monument, by far the most beautiful in the world, besides being a monument with the greatest meaning, is more beautiful than ever, with the light green of spring all around the slender white shaft.

The President sees it from his working office, as he swings around in his swivel chair. Secretary Mellon sees it from a window at the right of his desk.

And to one who has known the monument since Gen. Grant was President and the shaft unfinished, it seems more beautiful and impressive at each visit.

Pointing to the sky, it reminds that this country has produced one man whose memory is forever unassailable, and whose wisdom in the foundation of national wisdom, still lives.

THE PRESIDENT is hard at work through long hours, taking on his shoulders, and much to heart, responsibility for conditions that are not of his creating.

He, surely, did not start the great war. And this depression is one of the war's by-products. The United States and the rest of the world are now paying the price of war and their own foolishness.

SECRETARY MELLON, who works as though his family depended on what the government pays him, is not discouraged about the business future, although he warns against hasty optimism. He says, and knows, that where there are intelligence, power and opportunity, prosperity may vary, but cannot disappear.

When he was a young man, interested in the oil business in a small way, all profit came from kerosene, which had replaced whale oil in lamps.

Edison brought in the electric lamp and nearly everybody said:

"The oil business is doomed. With electricity, nobody will burn kerosene!"

Then the automobile came, and gasoline that Mr. Mellon used to sell by the carload for 2½ cents a gallon is now quite an industry. Mr. Mellon is still in the oil business.

MR. MELLON, who advises against reducing wages, as the President has done with all his influence since the depression began, remembers when he and an older brother were building a small railroad, 12 miles long, for their father, in a valley of the Pennsylvania mountains in the 1870s.

There was depression and unemployment then. The two Mellon brothers put as many men to work as possible from one end of the line to the other, grading, laying tracks. But the number of idle men, standing around, hoping for work, was greater than the number employed.

Many were discouraged. Mr. Mellon was not. He has continued building railroads and developing big industries. All those men on the small railroad, and men working in the mills and mines were paid 60 cents a day. That was the regular wage then. Consider the change.

THE WORLD is wondering why it doesn't recover, why it takes so long. A sick man wonders why it takes so long to get well. He must patiently wait for time to undo the unwise things that he has done.

A student of past depressions, all the way back to the beginning of the last century, may find comfort in the fact that 15 of them, every one of them major depressions, have vanished and made way for prosperity, either in June or July, not in any other month.

The question is, will it be June or July, 1931, or 1932, or later?

PROSPERITY RETURNS in one of the two months named, because those are the crop months. The winter wheat is in, corn and other crops are assured. BILLIONS OF NEW WEALTH from the soil are in sight and it is real wealth created by the farmers' hard work. No speculation there.

FORTUNATELY FOR the nation the outlook for this year's crops are marvelously good. They have never been better.

A year ago conditions were promising, and a revival seemed about to start, but then came the drought and hope was deferred.

The Lord tempers the wind to the shorn lamb. Some of us have been shorn no drought have been shorn pretty close since October, 1929. It is reasonable to hope that no drought will visit us this year.

And the crops, even without fantastic prices, will be worth in the neighborhood of TWELVE BILLIONS OF DOLLARS, two billions more than the amount we lent to Europeans that they

FILM STAR BEAT HER, GIRL SAYS

LOS ANGELES, May 9.—(AP.)—The city prosecutor's office has been asked by Alona Marlowe, film player, for a complaint charging battery against Lilyan Tashman, screen star, and began an investigation of the girl's story.

Miss Marlowe, sister of June Marlowe, film actress, said Miss Tashman kicked and beat her May 1 in Edmund Lowe's bungalow dressing room at a studio. Lowe is Miss Tashman's husband.

The girl said she was waiting for friends near Lowe's dressing room, and Lowe asked her to come inside "out of the sun." She said he left immediately for a set and soon after she was left alone. LOAD THWARTS DO-X TAKE-OFF

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 9.—(INS.)—An attempt by the German flying boat DO-X to take off early today from Bissagos Island, near the African coast, on its long-awaited flight to South America, failed because of its heavy load and the absence of helping winds, according to information received by the National Telegraph Wireless Bureau here.

An official of the bureau said:

"The DO-X attempted to get away at 4 a. m. today. The attempt was unsuccessful, partly due to the heavy load the ship is carrying and partly due to the fact there were no winds to help get the big ship into the air.

"Our information states the DO-X then was taken to the vicinity of Orango Island, where another attempt to start is to be made later in the day."

Rockne Plane Hit Building Before Crash, 2 Men Say

KANSAS CITY, May 9.—(AP.)—The Star says a switch engine crew reported seeing the wing tip of a tri-motor airplane strike a grain elevator here March 31, the day a similar transport ship crashed near Bazaar, Kan., and killed Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, and seven other persons.

The crew said they were certain the plane they observed was the air liner of the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., which took off from Kansas City and figured in the Bazaar crash.

The paper quotes Robert L. Boatright, foreman of the crew, of Kansas City, Kan., as saying:

"We saw the tip of the right wing of the machine strike the elevator. The plane was so low we thought it was falling, but the pilot brought his machine around and passed behind the elevator. We saw the plane rise over the hills a moment later."

J. C. Stephan, engineer of a switch engine, is quoted as saying:

"My fireman saw the plane and he jumped to the tender. I asked him what was the matter and he said 'the tip of the wing of that thing hit the fire escape and the elevator.' I saw the machine rising through the fog on the other side of the elevator.

"About three days later we were in that part of the yard again and saw a dent in the covering of the fire escape about where the others said the plane hit."

2 Ships Crash In Fog; 1 Dead In Tanker Fire

NEW YORK, May 9.—(INS.)—In one of the worst fogs New York has experienced in years the steamship Eastern Prince rammed the steamship Conte Biancamano in New York Harbor early today. The superstructure of the Eastern Prince was smashed but no damage was reported below the water line. No one was injured.

Meanwhile, radio messages received here indicated the tanker Ruth Kellogg was proceeding under her own power after a three-hour struggle with fire at sea. She was bound from Texas City for Warner City, N. J., with crude oil. Radio messages said that one man was so badly burned that he either jumped or fell overboard and was lost. Another was transferred for treatment to the tanker John D. Archbold.

SNAKE BLAMED IN NITRO BLAST

FRANKLIN, Pa., May 9.—A large blacksnake, crawling among the containers of 535 quarts of nitro-glycerin, is blamed for the terrific explosion which rocked Clintonville and its vicinity for 20 miles last night.

No one was injured, but windows were shattered in Clintonville and Barkleyville, eight miles away. A hole 6 feet deep and 30 feet in diameter was torn by the blast. Houses were rocked as by an earthquake. In Franklin, lights "winked" from force of the explosion. Clarion, Grove City and Harrisville reported the shock.

The nitro-glycerin magazine was located in a ravine three miles from Clintonville.

300 Policemen Too Many for Killer to Tackle

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Attorneys for 20-year-old New York cop killer will probably blame it on the war.

He was only 12 years old at that time.

But that will not stop a lawyer. The mouthpiece will say his client was so mad because he couldn't fight in 1918 he's been fighting ever since.

We don't know what makes a man hate police so much he wants to fight 300 of them.

Looks like poor matchmaking to us.

The battle and capture were perfect. We're glad the police are learning something from the movies.

Getting so if you aren't Two-Gun Sprowler or Three-Gun Scrammix you ain't anybody at all.

One gun isn't anything.

POLITICAL RUIN SEEN IN POWER BY PINCHOT

Utility Issue to Elect and Doom Candidates for All Offices, Governor Says

HUNTINGDON, Pa., May 9. — (AP.) — With growing conviction that his fight for abolition of the Public Service Commission is bearing fruit, Gov. Pinchot yesterday carried his campaign for passage of the administration "ripper" bills into the Adams-Franklin and Huntingdon-Blair senatorial districts.

At Huntingdon last night the Governor told his listeners that the public utility issue wil elect presidents. He said:

"There is no other question likely to occupy so large a field in the next few years. For decades a little group of far-sighted men and women have seen what was coming and have done their best to call public attention to the danger, and point out the remedy. Their work is bearing fruit. At the last election, in every state where the issue arose between the people and the utilities, the people won.

'CONFLICT IS HERE'

"The conflict is here. On one side the almost irresistible strength, ready to be exerted at the behest of the public utility magnates. On the other side the common people.

"This tremendous conflict is destined to be felt, and felt without delay, in every corner of America. This issue will elect presidents; it will defeat governors, senators and representatives; it will overturn political parties, and it bids fair to revolutionize the political map of America.

"Most important of all, it will determine whether the government of the people, established by our forefathers, is to endure or whether it shall be displaced by a little group of the overrich."

At McConnellsburg, where he spoke from the steps of a hotel, the Governor asserted that popular government is on trial in Pennsylvania. He said:

"It is high time the people put certain senators and representatives on the spot."

'TAKE THEM FOR RIDE'

He reiterated his intention of calling a special session of the General Assembly if the administration's program for ripping out the Public Service Commission and substitution of a fair rate board did not pass at the present session.

The special session, if necessary, he said, would be held just before the primaries next spring, and added:

"Then, if the people put any senator or representative on the 'spot' and they fail the people, the chance to take them for a ride will follow close behind."

Today meetings will be held at Altoona at noon; Bedford at 4 p. m., and Somerset at 8 p. m. The Governor's party will spend the night at Somerset and will reteurn to Harrisburg Sunday. The executive will resume his campaign at Greensburg next Wednesday night.

Hoover Shuns Fish For Conferences

WASHINGTON, May 9.—(AP.)—President Hoover intended today to deal with facts and not fish at his Rapidan (Va.) camp, where generally he finds recreation over the week-end.

Instead of whipping a line over the Rapidan River, Mr. Hoover had arranged conferences with Secretary Hurley and the heads of various branches of the War Department. Special attention was to be given to non-military activities of the department.

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP.)—Attorney General Bennett's family today was staying with relatives, while police continued to guard his Brooklyn home as a result of threats over his investigation of "Legs" Diamond's activities. Mr. Bennett said that he would remain at his own home while in this city.

KLINE AT HOME FROM HOSPITAL

Mayor Charles H. Kline, confined in St. Francis Hospital since April 6, when he underwent an operation for a carbuncle, was at home in the Park Mansions today. He left the hospital in company with Mrs. Kline last night.

At the home it was said the Mayor was resting comfortably.

When he left the hospital shortly after 9 p. m. he appeared to be greatly improved, although he walked with an unsteady gait, and leaned on Mrs. Kline's arm.

Rumors that Mayor Kline intended to resign found no confirmation from Mrs. Kline, who said:

"That is ridiculous. What he intends to do is get well."

There has been no discussion of a trip, according to Mrs. Kline, who said the Mayor was not permitted visitors, on orders from his physicians, and was not going to be bothered about anything. She added:

"I want to see him get well. All he needs is rest and time to regain his strength."

MANCHESTER SUSPECTS IN N. Y.

Two Others Are Sought Here For $52,000 Robbery on North Side in December

Five men were under arrest in New York today, in connection with the $52,000 holdup of the Manchester Savings Bank and Trust Company, 1312 Beaver avenue, North Side, December 16, according to word received here by Inspector Frany Boyd, of city detectives.

The men were arrested by New York detectives in connection with the robberies of banks in Paterson, N. J., and in Philadelphia.

According to the telegram, $5,700 in currency, tallying with a description of the money obtained in the bank robbery here, was found during a search of the suspects' rooms.

Two members of the robber gang believed to be in hiding here are being sought by city detectives.

Descriptions of the five men under arrest wired here are strikingly similar to the men who entered the Manchester bank shortly after it had opened for business. One of the suspects was described as being "bow-legged." Manchester bank officials said that one of the bandits who looted their institution of $52,000 had bowed legs.

The robbery of the Manchester bank was the third in the Pittsburgh district within 10 days.

The bandits leveled guns at G. C. Gerwig, 80-year-old president, and thurst Gerwig, other employes of the bank and 15 customers into the directors' room. J. Dravo Grumken, another official, was then forced to open the vault. The bandits grabbed several bundles of currency and fled, overlooking several thousand dollars.

During the holdup Adam Hoffman, 75, manager of the real estate department, was slugged when he tried to escape through a celar door to sound an alarm.

A bank official will accompany city detectives to New York to identify the suspects.

'KIDNAPED' GIRL WITH MOTHER

Sought yesterday as the "kidnaper" of her daughter, Jacqueline, 12, Mrs. Elizabeth Marshall, 38, a widow, was at home with the child today in their dwelling at 1408 Monterey street, North Side.

City detectives sought the girl and her mother upon request of River Rouge (Mich.) authorities, who reported Jacqueline had been "kidnaped" while en route from school Thursday. She had been staying at the home of her uncle, Leonard McHenry, of 63 Forest street, River Rouge, since January.

Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd said the "abduction" was a "family affair" and Mrs. Marshall would not be arrested unless a copy of an indictment in the case was forwarded to him.

Mrs. Marshall said:

"Jacqueline is my only child and nobody is going to take her from me. In a letter this week she asked me to take her back and that's just what I did. Unfortunately my brother wasn't home at the time, but I wired him of my daughter's whereabouts later."

6 MURDER RING SUSPECTS HELD

CHICAGO, May 9.—(INS.)—Suspects in more than a score of murders, kidnapings and bank robberies which attracted nation-wide attention, six alleged gangsters were due to arrive in Chicago today from East St. Louis, Ill., where they were seized.

The desperadoes, wanted by the federal government and by officials in several states, were en route to Chicago by automobile under heavy guard. They spent the night at Springfield, Ill., and were to stop at Sterling, Ill., to be viewed by witnesses of a bank robbery there.

Authorities believe the six may be the last of the gang of Fred (Killer) Burke, now serving a life sentence in Michigan for the killing of a policeman.

Slayer of Pillow Gang Chief Sought

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—(INS.)—Police today sought the assassins who took Camelo Fresina, reputed extortionist, for a ride and put two bullet holes through his skull, one behind each ear. Fresina's body was found on a lonely road near Edwardsville, Ill. He was chief of the notorious Pillow gang, according to police.

Boy's Kidnap Hoax Leads To State-Wide Search

After instigating a state-wide search for the alleged abductor of his older sister, Edward Grumber, 10, admitted to Oakland police today, they said, that the story was a myth, and that he had run away from his home at 6 Kirkpatrick street, rear.

The youth, found wandering in Forbes street, near Brady, told police that he and his sister who, he said, lived in Suterville, Westmoreland County, had been invited to take a ride in an automobile by a family friend and, upon their arrival here, the friend had spirited the girl away after he had been ejected from the machine in Forbes street.

Edward's mother, Mrs. Joseph Grumber, told police that Edward, a son by a previous marriage, had been discharged a few days ago from the Children's Hospital. She said she left him at home yesterday while she went to a nearby store and when she returned he had disappeared. He came to the house at 3 a. m. and when she called to him Edward ran away, she said. His sister, whom he had reported as being kidnaped, has been dead five years.

ESCAPED BARBECUE MURDER SUSPECT AND PAL CAPTURED

JAIL FUGITIVES ARRESTED IN UPTOWN INN

Pair Seized After Sawing Way Out of Greensburg Cell; Two Men Held as Aides

Two youths, one an Allegheny County murder suspect, who sawed their way to freedom from the Westmoreland County Jail at Greensburg, today were behind prison bars again.

Their day's liberty was cut short with their capture in a room of the Peekin Inn, second floor, 1607 Fifth avenue, by city detectives last night. The two "Dutch Louie" Zemler, 23, indicted on a murder charge, and Richard Golden, 22, of 1202 Resaca place, North Side, were captured without resistance.

Jackie Fromme, alleged proprietor of the inn, who was arrested on a suspicious person charge following the arrest of the pair, will be questioned today regarding the presence of the fugitives at his place.

Monaghan and Morgan, early today arrested Harry Eihardt, 42, of 607 West Diamond street, for questioning after they said they learned that the fugitives went to his home immediately after arriving in Pittsburgh.

Zemler, arrested in a holdup attempt in New Kensington in February, was indicted later in Allegheny County on a charge of killing William G. Waddell in a holdup of a barbecue stand on the Long Run road, Versailles Township. Although held here as a fugitive from Westmoreland County, Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk said today every effort would be made to keep Zemler here to face an early trial on the murder charge. He was to have been turned over to Allegheny County authorities this week. Golden was held on a charge of passing worthless checks totaling $65. He was to have been released upon payment of the amount and costs, which his mother and friends of the family were said to have raised.

CITY WILL PAVE CAR TRACKS AT ONCE

Kerr Reveals Pact Providing Public Assume Costs When Company Cannot Meet Bill

Work on repaving of streets traversed by tracks of the Pittsburgh Railways Company will start at once, despite the company's inability to pay its assessments, Controller James P. Kerr said today.

The work, amounting to approximately $600,000, Controller Kerr said, has been held up since Vice President Thomas Fitzgerald informed Council the traction company was unable to pay an assessment of $75,000. Lack of business was blamed.

Controller Kerr conferred for more than an hour late yesterday with City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt, Assistant Solicitor Thomas M. Benner, Attorney Lee Beatty and Public Works Director Edward G. Lang, outlining the city's policy.

Controller Kerr said:

"I have been advised by the Law Department that I must sign all contracts for work done on the streets where the Pittsburgh Railways Company has its tracks. It is likely the Public Works Department will start advertising for bids soon."

An agreement made by the city with the company in 1921 provides that in case the company fails to make its quarterly payments the liability must be assumed by the city, Kerr declared.

The company is not seeking a loophole to evade payments, Fitzgerald told Council, but expects to pay as soon as business gets better.

Council will have to provide at least $200,000 annually for this work if the company fails to pay.

A public hearing will be held on the traction situation in the near future. The hearing was requested by the Allied Boards of Trade.

WORLD TRADE CURES READY FOR VOTE

International Commerce Chamber to Adopt Plans For Business Aid Today

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The economic program of the International Chamber of Commerce for speeding the return of world prosperity, as drawn by 800 business leaders of Europe and America, was ready for adoption today by its sixth congress after a week of deliberations.

The program featured an indorsement of President Hoover's protest against war, with suggestions for the expansion of international credits, elimination of trade barriers, lowering of tariff walls, arbitration of commercial disputes and the curbing of agricultural over-production.

The International Chamber offered its program, not as a panacea for the immediate restoration of world prosperity, but as a road leading to a slow recovery from a depression that encircles the globe.

The most important action of the Congress was to be taken on a resolution dealing with the economic question of depression. Its provisions were guarded but International News Service learned it touched upon international war debts. The reference was a recommendation for a study of the effect of the decline in commodity prices upon political debts.

The war debt provision was regarded as a tremendous victory for the British and German delegations, which had agitated the question for months. Their initial demand had been for a revision of war debts, with the Germans demanding a revision of reparations. It was generally believed the polite battle here for an expression on war debts was but the forerunner of a formal appeal by Germany to The Hague tribunal for a moratorium on reparations. It was said Germany would make the appeal next winter.

TUXEDO-CLAD PAIR IN HOLDUP

Two men wearing tuxedo coats early today held up Robert Weaver, night attendant at a gasoline station at Penn avenue and Station street, and took $20 from him and an unestimated amount from the safe, which they forced the attendant to open. They escaped in an automobile.

S. Barrish, a taxicab driver, reported that two men who engaged his cab at Fourth avenue and Smithfield street robbed him of $9 and his cab at Second avenue and Lock No. 1 in the Monongahela River.

S. M. Grosman, of 3204 Ward street, reported to police early today that he had been held up and robbed of $5 by two armed men at Rippey street and Negley avenue.

Urge Bishops Share In Choosing Rectors

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP.)—The commission on ministry of the Episcopal Church will recommend to the triennial general convention in Denver, September 16, that the canon law be changed so bishop and parish share alike in the selection of a rector.

Under the present system, the commission will say, parishes select a rector without regard for his individual fitness, efficiency or ability.

PINCHOT RATE BOARD PLAN HIT

Gov. Pinchot's proposal to replace the Public Service Commission with a fair rate board has been attacked by the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania through its president, Leonard H. Kinnard, whose offices are located in Philadelphia. Kinnard yesterday mailed letters to every state senator, urging them to give close consideration to the three House bills which, Kinnard believes, "are hostile to the interests of Pennsylvania and its people."

The House bills, Nos. 1630, 1631, 1632, which would replace the commission with the fair rate board would jeopardize 300 millions of conservative telephone investment in Pennsylvania, Kinnard declared.

In the letter Kinnard stated that in several places the language of the proposed legislation discloses its unmistakable ultimate purpose to turn over the complete management of the public utilities to the suggested fair rate board—financing, construction, expenditures, rates, service and everything else.

BRANDS BUTLER AS 'TRAITOR'

Butler's disclosure of his spy mission to Mexico City in 1914 was a "traitorship" to his country. The paper added that Butler's remarks revealed the United States had "exercised vigilance on our country with purposes of invasion."

In a speech in Philadelphia Wednesday, Gen. Butler said the late Mexican President Victoriano Huerta had signed an order, while intoxicated, giving the Marine officer power to enter all army barracks in Mexico City. Butler said he posed as a detective in search of a murderer from the United States.

50 RAIL HEADS STUDY RATES

CHICAGO, May 9.—(AP.)—Presidents of 50 railroads, who said an emergency existed as to their credit and income, carried on a study of rates today with the view of discovering practical means of increasing their revenue.

All rate groups throughout the country were asked in a resolution adopted yesterday by the presidents, acting as members of the Association of Railroad Executives, to start a search for the ways and means of recovering lost sources of revenue. The executives agreed, however, that they would not cut wages.

They expressed the opinion that the downward trend in income since 1922 has been caused by what they termed a "whittling" at the rate structure.

The executives said they hoped to bring about a rate increase which would add $400,000,000 annually to their revenues. Of this $160,000,000 would be invested in labor.

The assault was made after Mayor Menendez addressed a meeting at the Labor Temple.

Two members of his party were severely beaten. The mayor was uninjured.

The attack was said to have been the result of dissatisfaction with the appointment of Mayor Menendez, who succeeded Rafel Sierra Dominguez three days ago. Tijuana officials said Dominguez resigned because government officials handicaped his administration program.

Bethlehem Deal Opposed in Court

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—(AP.)—Congressman George Franklin Drumm, of Schuylkill County, asserted in Federal Court that the proposed acquisition by the Bethlehem Steel Company of the plant of the defunct Eastern Steel Company, of Pottsville, would constitute a violation of the Sherman anti-trust laws.

G.O.P. Women Will Answer To People—Mrs. Pinchot

Although she did not specify when she expected the elected officials of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women to declare their position on the question of public utilities, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot said they should answer to the people of the state. She was surprised that anybody attending the council conference yesterday at the William Penn Hotel got the impression that she expected an answer. Last night Mrs. Pinchot said:

"It never crossed my mind to have these people answer now, or to me. Their answer must be made to the people of Pennsylvania."

At the conference Mrs. Pinchot asserted:

"Gen. Edward Martin, Mrs. Charles T. Etter and Mrs. Worthington Scranton, the elected officials of this organization should publicly declare their stand on the public utilities question. And Judge Sara M. Soffel should make clear her position on clean elections legislation."

Mrs. Pinchot's assertion brought a reply from Judge Soffel, who followed her on the speaking program. Judge Soffel said:

"Mrs. Pinchot has asked that I state my position on the public utilities question. I will do so frankly and honestly at the proper time. This is not the occasion."

might continue cutting each other's throats.

THE ABLE American, the kind that does the real work in good times and the rescue work in bad times, will go to work as though conditions were going to be forever as they are now. He will say to himself:

"If Mr. Mellon's father laid the foundation of one of the world's greatest fortunes when workmen were paid 60 cents a day and times were bad, I ought to be able to live, now that men even poorly paid get $3 a day and many four, five, six dollars and more."

ENERGETIC corporations, like energetic individuals, will do their part, adapting themselves to conditions "as is."

This, for instance, is written on a fast Pennsylvania train from Washington to New York. As you travel you read and learn that Gen. Atterbury, head of that road, will provide electric service between Washington and New York in three and one-half hours. Electrification of the line will be completed in two years, and airplane competition will be met at least for some time.

IF EACH individual and each corporation would think hard and work hard with things as they are, instead of sighing and growling, the depression itself would become discouraged and disappear.

Coolidge Urges Practical Tributes to Motherhood

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 9.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

By common consent Sunday will be observed as Mother's Day. Because we are so constituted that we have to think and act serially, it becomes necessary to dedicate special occasions for the emphasis of many important subjects which nevertheless influence us all the time. So we set apart a day for the contemplation of motherhood on which we can give some appropriate expression to the debt we all owe to the greatest sacrifice and devotion in human experience.

Mr. Coolidge

There is always danger that we shall not look at values in their proper proportions. What is common and obvious is often none the less precious. Among all the earthly blessings which have been bestowed upon us it is difficult to find one that compares with motherhood. It is hard to imagine a greater ambition than to be what our mothers would wish us to be.

These sentiments which we all entertain are of little value unless they are translated into action. The day can be well observed by making some contribution for maternity centers or for the general relief of mothers, to some of the various associations engaged in these charities. None of us can give as much as our mothers gave to us.

SECRET OF 'SPELL'

The former war correspondent and world traveler attempts to put into type the secret of the spell which Edward, P. has woven over the imagination of the whole world. Sir Philip writes:

"I believe that heredity has a good real to do with it. There is more than a touch of his grandfather (Edward VII) in him. He has the resistance to 'stuffiness' which enabled King Edward to break away from the stifling influence of his early Victorian boyhood.

"But it goes back further than that, along that strange, twisted thread of the hereditary chain which links him up with his predecessors, Bonny Prince Charlie of the Highland legends and that other Charles, afterwards called 'The Merrie Monarch;' and back again to Prince Hal, who heard the chimes of midnight in old London with Falstaff and Nym and Bardolph, of the flaming nose.

Clergymen Here Divided On Women in Ministry

Pittsburgh pastors apparently are well divided in opinion as to the advisibility of women entering the ministry.

A poll yesterday, occasioned by the address of Prof. Elmer E. Jones at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., urging women to enter religious work, revealed that two of three pastors, selected at random, favored women in the pulpits and one opposed them.

The statements from the pastors were:

The Rev. W. W. T. Duncan, Emory Methodist Church:

"I most assuredly would be in favor of women preachers. The church is recognizing more and more each day that they would be acceptable as ordained ministers."

The Rev. C. Wallace Petty, First Baptist Church:

"Preaching is not a matter of sex. It depends entirely upon ability, opportunity and the response to the ministry's call. I believe women preachers would be successful."

Dr. John Frank Troupe, Second Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg:

"I do not believe women should preach. The Scripture say that woman should be silent in church."

The report, in part, follows:

"We do not properly meet the spiritual necessities of our children in the brief, distracted half hour alloted to teaching in the average Sunday-school on a crowded Sunday. The week-day-church-school, with its definite program, its unique school methods and its atmosphere of sympathetic helpfulness, helps to make up this deficit."

The movement began to Gary, Ind., 17 years ago and although its growth has not been rapid schools have been opened in practically every state in the nation and many foreign countries.

MORE REVISIONS FOR 19TH WARD TAXPAYERS

McMahon Says Assessment Errors Will be Righted; Defends Rates in General

Further revisions in assessments in Beechview and other parts of the Nineteenth Ward were promised last night by Thomas C. McMahon, chief city assessor, addressing the Beechview Civic League at the Beechwood School.

McMahon agreed to confer with a committee of six of the organization. Many assessments in the South Hills wards were raised during the recent triennial revaluation.

That some errors have been made was admitted by McMahon, who said every effort will be made to correct them. In the main, however, he defended the new assessments, declaring many of the South Hills wards had not been checked since their entrance into the city.

Questioned by the audience, McMahon denied Mayor Kline had any part in assigning the men who revised the assessments. He accepted the responsibility himself.

James F. Malone spoke on methods being used in the state purchasing department to save money for the taxpayers. Assessments, he said, are not so important as the increasing tax levy, which he declared has reached the point where public servants who are faithful to their trust must curb it.

DORMONT TAX SET OVER VETO

By a vote of five to two, Dormont Council last night passed the 1931 tax levy ordinance over the veto of Burgess Charles Chamberlin, who declined to sign it when passed April 10 because, he said, he was refused information as to what the budget contained. In opposing it, he said:

"I asked for a copy of the budget in order that I might act in an intelligent manner when approving it. This was refused me, the only reason given being that it was none of the burgess' affairs what the budget called for."

The ordinance sets the rate at 11 mills from which, it is estimated, the income will be $201,325 from property taxes. Those voting for the passage were Councilmen Howard Hasley, Adam Oschenhirt, Elmer Evans, A. C. Staley and President Winters, and against, Dan Dougherty and Earl Llewellyn.

An ordinance was passed prohibiting parking in West Liberty avenue, from 7 to 9 a. m. and 4:30 to 6:30 p. m.

Can you beat it? John McCloy, erudite news hound of KDKA, and Tom Riggs of "Riggs and Moke," once led the daily sixth grade line at Swissvale grammar school.

* * *

A treat. Dick Powell and Brian McDonald appeared at KDKA simultaneously yesterday afternoon. No one was present when they arrived but after 10 minutes it was necessary to have a traffic cop to break through the mob. Beau brummels . . . and how!

QUESTION A DAY:

How many instruments are there in B. A. Rolfe's Orchestra?—Kate J., Wilkinsburg.

Answer—It would be easier for us to tell you there are 64 players. The instrumentation consists of eight saxophones and their accompanying "doubles," two oboes, two flutes, five clarinets, four xylophones, accordion, two pianos, five banjos and guitars, two cornets, three trombones, six trumpets, euphonium, two drums, two tubas, two string bass, six violins, two cellos, two violas. Many of these men "double" on other instruments, giving a probable lineup of 100 combinations.

* * *

Adalaine Merrill Biddle gave Eeln Glen Campbell a farewell party last night. We learned that when Eeln likes something particularly well she ejaculates "Ecco," the Italian word meaning OK. Many think she is saying "Echo" in the sense of "second the motion."

* * *

Saul Ayres of Brian McDonald's stage show gave a deadringer imitation of Lightnin' on KDKA last night . . . so perfect that he made Ed Harvey take notice.

* * *

While a student at Tufts College, Boston, Lew Conrad saved a girl's life when the canoe in which she was rowing capsized . . . no, they didn't marry . . . the girl marched to the altar with one of Lew's chums and later named one of her three children for the NBC tenor . . . read more about Lew in tomorrow's radio section.

The Bishop Speaks

TOM NOONAN, Bishop of Chinatown, contributes this paragraph:

"Mother's Day is a fine institution, but there are two things the matter with it. The first is that it should come 365 days a year instead of just once, and instead of honoring Mother alone, we ought to take our hats off to Dad, too."

These are words well spoken. If Mother is living, do more than present her with a box of sweets or a flower today . . . . . kiss her by surprise. And Dad would appreciate more than a box of smokes . . . . . tell him what a great scout he is!

CLARKE MOSS, local radio tenor, resembles Leo O'Rourke, tenor of The Cavaliers . . .

BOYS AT BETTIS Field are great favorites with the Jesters . . . and receive several complimentary mentions.

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, May 9.—Most of the secure stars in the radio constellation are old-timers as broadcasting is reckoned. They came to the microphone in the early days of its history, came unheralded and practically unknown, and almost as quickly as a Hollywood theme song reaches Podunk Center, became household idols.

And household idols they remain, despite the growing sophistication of listeners and broadcasters alike, despite the access to the parlors of every poohbah in the world, of the leading concert artists of the day. You can take them or leave them. And most people take them, turn the dial regularly to them, listen attentively to their programs.

Who are some of the old-timers of the loudspeakers, who sit as prominently in the radio heavens as jazz sits in Harlem? We find such names as Graham McNamee, still, in spite of his decline as a sports announcer, the big shot among the attention-callers at the cashier's window; Billy Jones and Ernie Hare, still the foremost trappers of the wise-crack; Vincent Lopez, dispenser of rhythm; Rudy Vallee, shah of the sentimentalists; Vaughn de Leath, crooner; Jessica Dragonette and Olive Palmer, sopranos; Joe White, once known as a silver masked tenor.

* * *

There are others, my comrades. There is Walter Damrosch, most expert of the musical historians on the air. There are Amos 'n' Andy. There is Milton Cross, with the plaintive talking style, who could make even the announcing of "Turkey in the Straw" a melancholy affair. There is Ted Husing, another noun-and-adjective man. There is Phil Cook, impersonator of various voices. There are Eilena Kazanova, interpreter of the somber music of the steppes; May Singh Breen, strummer of the ukelele, and Dad Pickard, foremost exponent of the hoedowns of the countryside.

* * *

All of them are among the leading stars of radio. There are only a half dozen other names that can be added to the list whose effulgence in the microphone sky is as brilliant as it is seemingly permanent—Floyd Gibbons, Phil Lord, of Seth Parker fame; Bill Munday, drawling voiced announcer from Jawjah; Julian Sanderson, sentimental balladeer of pre-talkie Broadway; Lowell Thomas, news dispatcher; Morton Downey, latest darling of the debutantes; B. A. Rolfe and Guy Lombardo, kings, respectively, of fast and languorous jazz.

Most of them are comparative newcomers to radio, but their place is not only fair, it is fixed.

Recently, radio has halted in its welcome of new stars. It seems to be bidin' its time, waiting for something to turn up, some new personality who will capture the fancy as well as the ears of the public. It looks like a long wait.

* * *

Most of those in the throne room of radio are exclusively the products of the microphone. Most of them were obscure figures in the entertainment world until the broadcasters seized upon them and made them known wherever radio penetrates.

Radio, like the movies, developed the majority of its magnificoes. It will continue to do so or we are talking more than ever through our blue beret. It is time now that some new star appeared in the broadcasting heavens. But even when that time comes the old stars, we believe, will continue to hold their place. Radio stars are not easily dislodged.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Putting Green Diverts Golfers During Club's Opening Breakfast

From now on women are going to be just as engrossed by golf as men. Some play every day, and of course everyone turns out for special events.

Particularly attractive are some of the May events planned by the women golfers. The Pittsburgh Field Club, by the way, opened its season yesterday morning with a golf breakfast in the clubhouse dining room. And I must tell you about a novel note in the decorations. The horseshoe table inclosed an indoor putting green to divert the women golfers during courses.

On Tuesday will come the first league team match at the Allegheny Country Club. And on May 19 a league team match will be played at the Pittsburgh Field Club. At this time Fox Chapel golfers will play with the Pittsburgh Field Club.

* * *

Now the formal opening of the new Edgeworth clubhouse has been postponed from May 15 to May 21. The event will be a dinner-dance, with Ralph S. Richards as general chairman. Assisting him on the entertainment committee will be Mrs. H. Raymond Freeman, Jr., Hanson Thomas, Mrs. Gilbert S. Rafferty, Frank W. Jarvis, Miss Dorothy Slack, Mrs. Joseph D. Porter, Robert A. Applegate and Robert H. McCague.

Postpone Opening

* * *

And I want to mention another event of interest to society folks. The Thurston Prep School will hold commencement exercises on Thursday, June 2, at 4 o'clock, in Calvary Episcopal Church. The Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten will give an address. A reception will follow the commencement.

* * *

Mrs. A. Rex Flinn, of Aylesboro avenue, who has been in New York, is expected home on Tuesday.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Webb, of McKee place, Oakland, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth S. LaCompte Webb, to Frederick L. Bishop, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Bishop, of Fox Chapel Manor. The ceremony took place in the Oakland Methodist Episcopal Church, which was decked with palms, ferns and spring flowers. Officiating was the Rev. Raymond W. Faus.

Weds In Church

The bride wore a gown of white satin and lace and her tulle veil cascaded from a cap of lace caught with orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Eunice Williamson, wore blue lace and carried a Dresden bouquet. Miss Annabelle Brooks, of Chambersburg, as junior bridesmaid, wore pink crepe de chine and carried a colonial bouquet, and Miss Alice Clendaniel, of Newark, N. J., was the bridesmaid, wearing peach lace and carrying a Dresden bouquet.

* * *

Herman Davis served as best man, and the ushers were Robert Seidle, Charles Seidle, Harvey White and Franklin Webb, William Percy Webb, of Sharon, brother of the bride, played the wedding music.

In Bridal Party

The reception and dinner were given in the Woman's City Club in the William Penn Hotel. Covers were laid for 65 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Bishop will reside in New Castle, after a southern wedding trip. The rehearsal dinner was given Friday night by Dr. and Mrs. Bishop, in their home.

Mrs. John J. Lazaro, of New York, formerly Miss Mary Falvo, daughter of Mrs. John Falvo, of the East End, is in town for Mother's Day.

-:- CLUB NOTES -:-

Presidents and representatives of 26 other organizations were among the 200 guests who attended the reciprocity day meeting of the Crafton Woman's Club yesterday afternoon. It was held in Wood Hall and was marked by an especially interesting program, not the least important feature of which was the appearance of the Crafton High School girls' double quartet, which won the Forensic League trophy. A Japanese wedding was done in pantomime by a group of Carnegie Woman's Club members and selections by the string trio of the Crafton Club completed the entertainment.

PRINTS AGAIN ASSUME ROLE OF IMPORTANCE FOR SUMMER

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 9.—We ha Prints are still interestin or perhaps because, they have succumbed to an ov larity, one realizes that p ject to be reckoned with. showing prints, not in last year or the year b sten to print the latest news anent prints. g, and although, are supposed to erdose of popu- rint is still a sub- Every house is such quantities as efore, but still in sufficient variety to make the fash- ion quite notice- able. One sees big splashy prints with dashes of vivid color on pale backgrounds, worn by smart women at almost every smart resort, but as yet this mode has not reached the point when it is the rule and not the exception. For daytime wear, too, one sees small neat figured prints in crepe de chine and other fabrics, worn by all types of women.

* * *

BUT NOW for our latest bulletin on prints. This year we are to have certain modes in black and other dark colors relieved with trimmings of gaily colored print, both of the fabrics being chiffon or georgette of some other thin material. We think that you will find that this fashion will solve in a bright and happy fashion the print problem. We believe that it will be one of the highlights of the summer mode.

CHANTAL IS ONE of the dressmakers who is featuring soft black chiffon combined with gaily flowered chiffon for summer evening wear. One of her versions of this clever idea is presented in the accompanying sketch. The scalloped bertha and diagonal piece in the skirt are of the gaily printed chiffon, and thus lend a most unusual and summery aspect to the gown. There is a soft, crushed belt knotted in two bows at the right hip.

REDFERN MADE the coat, shown in the drawing, for Mlle. Suzy Vernon, the actress. It is of greige tweed flecked here and there with black and effectively combined with broadtail. The wide, puffed collar alternates triangular sections of the material with pieces of the fur. The sleeves below the elbow are open over deep cuffs of broadtail. A black suede belt is worn just atop the hips.

REVIEWS OF STAGE AND SCREEN ENTERTAINMENT; GOTHAM GOSSIP

Richard Arlen to Support Actress Pinch-Hitting For Clara Bow

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, May 9.

Visions of a lazy vacation on his yacht were broken up for Dick Arlen when at 4 a. m. studio summons brought him back here from Catalina to play opposite Peggy Shannon in "The Secret Call."

Harassed officials are fervently hoping that this picture now will get under way. They are bending every effort to familiarize the motion picture public with Peggy Shannon, the red-headed newcomer from Broadway who will pinch-hit for Clara Bow.

Richard Arlen

Dick undoubtedly was called in because the picture has to have a ready-made screen name to draw fans into the box-office. Eugene Pallette, a dependable comedian, also has been added to the cast.

With all that has happened on his first assignment, Director Stuart Walker may well figure that he has received his baptism in fire.

DAY BY DAY

Those frisky fellows who change titles have been at work again. "Two Can Play," a Fox film, now will be called: "She Wears the Pants."

Marlene Dietrich wears an old-fashioned gold wedding ring. She also writes a letter a day to her husband in Germany. Her secretary addresses envelopes to him, 50 at a time . . . Paramount has a new ruling that everyone must be checked in and out of the studio. In the first day, two directors and two writers all used the same name with the result that 30 round trips were charged up against Groucho Marx . . . Now that Bill Powell has gone to Warners, girl-friend Carole Lombard has fallen heir to his dressing room at Paramount. It's been redecorated in mulberry and ivory . . . Lew Cody's real chauffeur, James, is playing his film chauffeur in "The Whoop-Te-De Kid." This dusky fellow thinks the sun rises and sets in Lew. He even has taken the name of Cody . . . Fifi Dorsay was toastmistress at a nearby rotary convention. She probably made the boys forget all the bull speaches . . . An ex-Hollywood press agent is to write a series of articles for a fan magazine on "People I Have Worked For." That ought to be one way of collecting back bills . . . Eight different painters have made portraits of Lilyan Tashman. She has saved all the canvases.

Marlene Dietrich

FILMS GET HER

Like so many Broadway players who appear on the stage here, Erin O'Brien Moore, heroine of "Street Scene," will remain for the films. She is under a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract, starting after the run of the play in San Francisco. This young actress is the daughter of O'Brien Moore, famous Washington newspaper correspondent, who became known as Grover Cleveland's mouthpiece. He later became editor of the Tucson (Ariz.) Citizen. His daughter, Erin, played in "The Devil's Disciple" on Broadway, and has been two and one-half years in "Street Scene."

JACK OAKIE IS STAR IN FULTON, SHERIDAN

By MARGARET RUSSELL

If you are a tenderfoot with a yen for the wild and woolly West, you'd better see what happens to Jack Oakie and Mitzie Green on a "Dude Ranch" at the Fulton and Sheridan Square this week. Things start popping on the Six-Gun Ranch when the Jennifer & Judd repertoire arrive with empty stomachs and a bag full of tricks.

But they miss their cues when four smooth gentlemen come on the scene with shoulder holsters under their well-cut clothes, and a lively interest in the local bank situation. Things look bad for our hero who has a tough time learning to ride a horse. But in the end he gets the breaks and the girl, June Collyer, which is all anyone can expect on or off a dude ranch.

The Fulton program includes several short sketches: Armida in "While the Captain Waits;" an animal study, "Like a Beaver," which it took Dr. Ray L. Ditmars six years to make; a comic matrimonial farce, "Thou Shalt Not," with Billy House, and Paramount Sound News. Next week at the Fulton Tallulah Bankhead and Clive Brooks will appear in the "Tarnished Lady."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

TUCSON, Ariz., May 9.

Well here we are in Tucson, the champion humane town of America, its climate has prolonged more people's lives than any single place. A fine university and the best college polo team in the United States; this up-to-date little city is near enough to Mexico to get a touch of liberty. I was reading a nice thing in this morning's local paper. It was of a dinner in New York of a lot of fine women—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Sr., Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Lindbergh, Mrs. Sloan and Kermit Roosevelt's wife—all to arouse not only interest, but horror, in our unbelievable death rate from child birth. Sixteen thousand a year—the highest in the world. The way we lose 'em here it would be safer, if you are figuring on having a baby to go to some uncivilized country like India or Africa to do it.

Yours, WILL.

Mystery

Aileen Pringle meets with murder and mystery in "The Subway Express," the new film in both the Davis and Enright theaters.

STRAIGHT CROOK PLAY WITH FRESH ANGLE PLEASES IN PENN

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Clara Bow is merely an incident in the picture romance of "Kick In" at the Penn Theater. She is the heroine, it is true, but all that's required of her is to look serious, worried, excited and clean. It is hard work, no doubt, for the rampant redhead of earlier pictures to look serious and all that—but she does it. She fills all the requirements of the part assigned to her, and the director has been wise enough not to put in more and spoil the script of a very neat drama about a crook trying to go straight and getting in wrong because of his old associates.

George Seibel

Willard Mack is responsible for the story, based on his stage play, and he knows the trade. That is why this is a good picture, accurately dovetailed and smoothly planed.

FILLED WITH SUSPENSE

The crook, played well by Regis Toomey, comes out of prison at the beginning of the picture, and decides to go straight. After two years of this one of his old pals pulls a job, robbing the district attorney's home, and gets shot. He is brought by his moll to the home of the reformed crook, whose brother-in-law is a dope-fiend—and the rest of the drama is filled with suspense.

There are flashes of brilliant dialogue, but the story's the thing. This picture is worth while.

TEDDY JOYCE BACK

The stage show is presided over by Al Wohlman, and its most pleasing feature is a dance number by three little girls from the west—Hite, Casey and Kenny. There is no bevy of Chester Hale's cherubs, but Teddy Joyce is back and received a cordial welcome. He croons, fiddles, dances and clowns with his old-time fervor. Dick Leibert plays four popular numbers on the organ, and the newsreel has some very remarkable pictures from Barcelona, where the entire population of Spain seems to have turned out to welcome the new president Zamora.

Guilty of Assault, Ex-Deputy Fined

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 9.—Earl Cole, former deputy constable of Canton Township, was sentenced to pay the costs, fine of $100, and was paroled for one year, following his plea of guilty to charges of aggravated assault and battery. Cole is alleged to have fired a tear gas gun at Walter Beatty when the defendant, with another officer, went to Beatty's house looking for two other men. Beatty suffered severe burns.

Kennywood Park Has Dance Tonight

Ex-Rail Official, Coal Operator, Dies

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., May 9.—Maj. Samuel D. Brady, West Virginia coal operator and former chief engineer for the Buckhannon Northern Railway Company, died in Morgantown, W. Va., yesterday of complications developing from a fractured leg, railway officials here were advised. He was president of the Osage Coal Company, Morgantown.

'SEED,' STANLEY FILM, SHOWS HOLLYWOOD CULTIVATION

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Seed," based on a story of the same name by Charles G. Norris, opened yesterday in the Stanley. The cast features Genevieve Tobin, John Boles, Lois Wilson, Zasu Pitts and Raymond Hackett. It was directed by John Stahl.

As a novel "Seed" had the freedom and the daring of a wild flower. But the screen has tamed and cultivated it into the nicety of a garden flower. The birth control theme has been eliminated and in many other ways the story has been altered.

The picture, however, is pleasant and thoughtful drama of mother love and the eternal triangle. Here is a wife, whose five children are her whole life. Here is a husband, who finds the responsibilities of parenthood an obstacle to his ambition to be an author. And here is the other woman, who looms up at opportune times with the needed amount of sympathy and understanding.

THE BEST SHOTS

Mr. Boles plays the father role. He's so wrapped up in his ambition to write that he doesn't even sing one song. But the portrayal proves he doesn't need songs to get him by in the movies. Miss Tobin is a very sensible Other Woman, which means she is a good actress. And Miss Wilson makes a human and interesting mother. The children, when they are young, are played by a capable group of youngsters, and when they grow up, they are replaced by another group of players, including Mr. Hackett, who are just as capable.

The best shot in the picture is Zasu Pitts, as maid, being chased up the stairs by the five youngsters; and the next best shot is the two women, ex-wife and wife No. 2 by this time, eating cinnamon buns together. They each have lived and learned.

ACROBATIC FELLOWS

Lester Allen, the little fellow who is a big comic, is prominent in the stage show. He jumps in and out of size 56 shoes and gives an impersonation of John McCormack that is a small scream. The sensation of the bill is the Three Cressos, acrobatic youths, who prove that there is something new under the sun. Dick Powell, appearing debonair and happy, sings three songs, one of which is an appropriate Mother's Day gesture.

Short film entertainment and a David Broudy overture are other attractions.

PROTEST HEARD ON ANNEXATION

Judge George V. Moore, in Quarter Sessions Court, yesterday heard arguments against the annexation to Pittsburgh of portions of Reserve and Penn townships.

Appellants declared an act passed April 9 repealed the act of 1874 under which the annexation proceedings were brought. Attorneys for the petitioners argued the ordinances for the annexations had already become valid before this act was repealed, and that appeal could only be made as to the validity of the petitions, whether three-fifths of the taxables had signed them, or whether the territory is contiguous to the city.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Dirigible," which might be called airy entertainment, if not light, begins its second week of two shows daily in the Pitt Monday. Jack Holt and Ralph Graves are a pair of high fliers in this photoplaymate. Fay Wray is married to one and liked by the other.

Came the reply:

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: I saw a sample jacket of "The Columnist Murder," the crime novel which Farrar-Rinehart plan to present in July . . . It is a striking cover for a book, revealing a blood-stained finger pointing to an item such as appears in your quidnunc col'm . . . A blurb states: "A gossip item looked harmless, but three gruesome deaths followed!" . . . Have yourself a shiver . . . They say, however, that Lawrence Saunders (Burton Davis to you!) has done a thrilling job of it, but so far as I am concerned he will go down in literary history as being another novelist who turned yellow when it came to mentioning your name, when he meant you . . . He calls his central character "Tommy Twitchell" . . . How subtle! . . . At any rate, this is the book in which you are killed while in a phone booth during a performance of the "Follies" . . .

As soon as you come in rush upstairs to Mr. K. . . . What have you done now?

Seward Collins of The Bookman, cannot understand your blunder in reporting that Dorothy Parker's "Telephone Call" novelette appeared originally in The Nyorker, when you recommended it to diversion seekers in Jan'y . . . It appeared in his magazine, you dope . . . You are invited by the Mayor and the Comm. of Correction to the "graduation exercises" of the Prison Keepers . . . Don't go, I think it's a plot . . . The Central Park Casino reminds you that on Tuesday Barry & Fitzgibbons return for an engagement . . . Miss Barry is the beautiful person you raved about so many times, or do you forget so quickly?

A Mr. Foster, of Pathe News phoned. He said they are making a series of talkies showing Broadwayites — "personalities" he calls them . . . He would like you to tell in a few hundred words just what is happening to Broadway . . . So I asked him how much money? . . . So he says back: "No money!" . . . So I says back: "No personality!" and hung up . . . I wouldn't have been so third-rate in my manners, but that shows you what contagious habits you have.

You might get a paragraph out of this . . . The name of William Allen White, the most famous country editor in the world, is barred from the N. Y. Sun, except, of course, in news which cannot be ignored . . . It seems Mr. White once penned a sour editorial obituary on the late owner, Frank Munsey . . . . There appears to be a controversy about you going on in the "Letters to the Editor" col'm of the Cleveland News . . . Harold Ross is using a grand series of old-fashioned cartoons with modern slang captions . . . I am saving them . . . If you don't mind my bringing up the subject, you need a new suit of clothes . . . The double-breasted blue one has a terrific shine to it.

There appears to be a great to-do over the newest Lucky Strike ad because it states that women have Adam's apples in their throats, etc. . . . Newspaper readers have bombarded the ciggie firm with letters kidding them for their so-called boner . . . Well, you might include in Things You Never K. T. Now that women do have them . . . I got that from a medical authority . . . Rudy Vallee was guest columnist for your old paper today . . . The advance advertising about it stated that Rudy was going to slap back at his tormentors . . . He was very liberal with you, and slapped at nobody . . . You might kid Miss Vitray, the woman editor of that sheet, for writing: "I don't really suppose Diamond's murderers will be brought to justice this time, any more than they were the last time they murdered him!"

"E. A." is not Edward Anthony . . . The fastest trains are not in Canada, as you reported . . . The fastest train is one that runs from Philly to Atlantic City, or somewhere near there . . . You might tell the city desk about the row between L. Calhern, the actor, and Charles Hopkins, his manager . . . Stew stuff . . . Equity will hold a trial and do the necessary, if any, punishing . . . You owe Vanity Fair two articles, College Humor three, and both are very sore, too.

I see the Silver Slipper and the 300 Club have reopened. . . . If the night club business gets any worse remember that I told you why. . . . This is why: Nearly everybody is taking those glorious week-end trips on the better Cunard liners. . . . Imagine sailing for four days down to Bermuda and back on the Berengaria or Mauretania—first class, yet . . . The fee is as low as $100 and as high as $600. . . . The food is grand, there are three dance orchestras, and they run their night clubs aboard ship the way they ought to be run. . . . You can see the show free, and stay as long as you like, but, of course, nearly everyone buys wine. . . . You rarely encounter a Sunday school preacher aboard, so imagine the whoopee! . . . Today is when you should send your mother a check. . . . Mark has the hives.

Various people have been phoning to tell you that nearly all the Brooklyn "L" stations offer the Majestic Theater's advertising which states: "The Road to Hell" (For Women Only!) . . . The moron, the merrier! . . . Did you know that a man sentenced to jail for 20 years to life is automatically divorced, as he is considered legally dead? . . . 'S true! . . . And if he is pardoned after 15 years, on such a sentence, he may marry again, without being a bigamist . . . An anonymous voice insisted I tell you that artists appearing on the Metropolitan Opera House stage for rehearsals are not permitted to wear hats, cloaks or tote canes . . . What do you care?

Use this if you like . . . It happened when Miss Joyce was playing at the Palace . . . After the matinee one day a dignified looking old gent in a weather-beaten suit approached her . . . "Hello, Miss Joyce!" he said. . . . Peggy gave him the lorgnette and said: "I beg pahdin, but where did we meet?" . . . "Don't you remember me?" he asked breathlessly. "I had the pleasure of meeting you in Paris at the Raguna Hotel and I escorted you to the American Bar to meet Mr. Ray Goetz" . . . "Oh, yes," replied Peg, "I remember you now, you were Mr. Goetz's messenger boy" . . . Then she started to leave . . . "I beg your pardon, Miss Joyce," was the dejected answer, "I was his backer—at the time" . . . Say! If you hear of a newspaper needing a columiss, put in a good word for me, will yuh?"—R. C.

'MEN CALL IT LOVE' PHOTOPLAY IN ALDINE

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Men Call It Love," a comedy about marital complications in the making of which the producers soft-pedaled on the sexy spots, and in which our vigilant censors excised some that the producers left, is on the Aldine screen. It's a high class film of its type, with Adolphe Menjou, Leila Hyams and Norma Foster each giving smooth, convincing portrayals of the principal roles.

Menjou, who has made love to so many married women on the screen, is back at his old tricks. Leila Hyams attracts him, but she is much in love with her husband, Norman Foster, who is much in love with her. Another married lady, Mary Duncan, causes him to appear unfaithful and Leila almost goes to Adolphe. It is well acted throughout, and is toned with sophisticated humor.

Miss Hyams is especially appealing, and anybody who sees her in this picture will have to admit that she is a real actress. It is made from the stage comedy, "Among the Married." It has two romantic triangles intertwined. Hedda Hopper and Robert Emmett Keane are seen in the supporting roles.

Hearst Metrotone News includes views of the reception to Siam's King and Queen. There also are short comedy and novelty films that will be appreciated.

INDICT BROKERS IN STOCK DEAL

David S. Hammond, Castlegate road, Wilkinsburg, and D. E. Walker, 579 Princeton boulevard, Wilkinsburg, brokers, have been indicted by the May grand jury for conspiracy and false pretense.

It is charged they pretended to Charles Brinza, 1911 St. Ives street, North Side, that they would give him exclusive right to a building they were to erect at Washington and Brighton roads, North Side, provided he would purchase $1,000 of stock in a home building company, which he did June 14, and purchased $500 additional stock September 30.

It is charged Hammond and Walker represented to Brinza that the stock was listed as A-1 on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, while, in fact, it never was listed by the exchange. The case will be tried soon in Criminal Court.

MURDER IN SUBWAY IN BOTH DAVIS AND ENRIGHT

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"The Subway Express," roaring murder melodrama, opened yesterday on the screens in both the Enright and the Davis. Not so many months ago, as a stage play, it held the boards in the Nixon.

This movie express is a more crowded affair than the stage play was. It has more passengers. In other ways, too, minor liberties have been taken with the original version, but the production still remains an exciting melodrama and keeps well to the stage script.

The story concerns the murder of a man in a moving New York subway train, and the subsequent events that lead to solving of the mystery. At first it looks like a plain and easy case, but it develops into quite a baffling affair.

However, the movies called Jack Holt to solve it and he makes a pretty good detective. As an assistant he has Fred Kelsey, the great big and dumblike sleuth, who was in "The Donovan Affair."

Others prominent in the cast are Aileen Pringle, Jason Robards, Sidney Bracey and Alan Roscoe.

A Slim Summerville comedy, which is funny, and other short film entertainment complete the Davis bill, while the Enright offers another stage show with Brian McDonald as the master of ceremonies. Gus Edwards' proteges are the big feature of this show.

The Glassport-Elizabeth Road, located in Glassport Borough and Lincoln Township, is a reconstruction of a deteriorated stretch of roadway bordering the Monongahela River and extending to the Glassport approach to the Glassport-Clairton Bridge, for a distance of 1.42 miles. This road, as all roads paralleling the rivers, is a heavily traveled road, due to its generally low grades.

The pavement on the new road consists of reinforced concrete, 9 inches thick at the edges, 7 inches at center, and is 20 feet wide.

This contract was awarded to F. W. Scott on September 29, 1930, the contract price being $124,459.00. The work will be completed about the first of July, and the source of funds for this improvement was the 1928 Peoples Bond Issue.

WORLD AWAITS PROGRAM OF PRODUCTION

Safer Now to Make Plans Than It Would Have Been A Couple of Years Ago

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, May 9.—Unquestionably hard work will dig the world out of the tunnel of depression, but it should not be overlooked that the work must be intelligently directed.

With productive facilities perhaps more plentiful and more efficient than at any time in the past, the world is waiting for the formulation of a program of production. It is safer to make such constructive plans today, after the event of deflation, than it would have been a couple of years ago before necessary economic correction had taken place.

Mr. Rukeyser.

Since the problem of depression is international, Sir Arthur Salter, in a pertinent message to the International Chamber of Commerce, suggested international co-operation along remedial lines. There is the germ of an idea here for business leaders.

Many months ago, Dr. H. Schacht, former head of the German Reichsbank, made a similar proposal, suggesting an international consortium among business men and bankers in the United States, Great Britain, Germany, France and Belgium. Dr. Schacht especially suggested that the international group sponsor projects for raising the standard of living in backward countries. By way of illustration, he specifically proposed the building of a railroad in Rumania.

Sir Arthur, thinking along the same line, indicated that, though the bottom of the depression may have passed, there might be a "prospect of disaster" if co-ordinated efforts are not brought to bear on the problem.

LEADERS SHOULD LEAD

Readjustment will be quickened to the extent that business leaders lead, instead of continuing to drift, and wonder, and predict.

Capital and credit are suffering, with labor, from partial unemployment, and part of the world is going hungry while other sections are glutted with excess supplies. Perhaps never before was there a more magnificent opportunity for management in the large to prove worthy of its hire. The sound remedy would not be through the narcotic of inflation, but through making plans in accordance with the mandate of the times for carrying on on a lower level of prices and operating costs.

At home, a special phase of the problem is to bring the high cost of distribution into greater balance with the low cost of production.

GLASS TRADE UNCHANGED IN WEEK

Buying Trend Unaffected By Downward Revision In Window Glass Price

Conditions in the several branches of the flat glass industry held, along substantially unchanged lines the past week, according to American Glass Review. The demand for plate glass was seasonally better than in other sections of the market. A further downward readjustment of window glass selling prices, effective from May 1, has apparently had little influence as yet on buying trends.

This latest revision of prices by the window glass manufacturers represents a reduction of from 8 to 10 per cent and is the third to be made since early December. Distribution of this commodity during the week was in light volume and such business as developed was mostly for immediate trade needs. Factory operating schedules were being maintained at the exceptionally low levels of recent weeks. Production in May is expected to run under 350,000 boxes.

HEARING SLATED

Of interest to all factors in the window glass trade is the public hearing to be conducted next Friday, May 15, by the United States Tariff Commission. This hearing is being held in conjunction with the commission's investigation of foreign and domestic production costs of window glass, which has been under way for some months.

Demand for plate glass, while showing comparatively little improvement this week, was holding the gains made the latter half of April. Production is at a higher rate, reflecting the larger requirements of automobile manufacturers, and the market continues firm. The steadily increasing use of thin quality plate in production of laminated glass has been a considerable factor in the greater activity in this branch.

SHIPBUILDING EXPANDING IN U. S.

Yards Had 321,900 Tons Under Construction on May 1; Operating at 50%

NEW YORK, May 9.—Shipbuilding in the United States continues to gain in the volume of work under way. As of May 1, last, the five largest yards were building 22 merchant vessels of the passenger and combination type and five tankers, having an aggregate gross tonnage of 321,900. At the beginning of this year, 18 merchant vessels and eight tankers were under construction, with a gross tonnage of 306,100.

Revival of the industry has resulted chiefly from the enactment of the Jones-White law (commonly called the Merchant Marine Act), in 1928, under which the government is awarding mail pay on 10-year contracts, and requiring the construction of new tonnage and modernization of older tonnage.

MAIL CONTRACT WORK

Of the new vessels definitely required to be built under the provisions of mail contracts, seven have been delivered and 31 are to be built within the next few years. In addition, 33 vessels now in operation must be reconditioned or replaced by new tonnage.

The dollar value of unfinished work in the country's shipyards as of May 1 approximated $61,000,000 for merchant vessels and $32,000,000 for government vessels. Comparative figures for January 1, last, were $65,000,000 and $25,000,000, respectively. The government recently awarded a contract for a cruiser to the New York Shipbuilding Company.

ALL ON EAST COAST

On the basis of unfinished work, the shipbuilding industry is operating at about 50 per cent of normal capacity. The number of men employed by 20 of the coastal shipyards, which includes all the yards equipped to build seagoing vessels, was 17,500 on May 1. Some of the men were engaged in repair work.

New construction has been confined to Atlantic Coast yards. No new construction of seagoing vessels is under way on the Pacific Coast.

WINTER WHEAT AREA LESS

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Department of Agriculture estimates that on May 1, the area of winter wheat to be harvested was 40,432,000 acres, or 1,561,000 acres less than the acreage sown last fall, and 1,981,000 acres less than the 1930 harvest. Average harvested acreage for the five-years—1925 to 1929—was 36,466,000 acres. Average abandonment to May 1 for the 10-years—1920-1929—was 12.2 per cent.

Condition of winter wheat on May 1 was 90.3 per cent of normal, against 76.7 per cent a year ago. Condition of rye May 1 was 85.4 per cent, against 84.0 per cent a year ago. Indicated crops in bushels May 1 of winter wheat was 652,902,000 bushels and rye 50,676,000 bushels.

BANK CUTS AID U. S. PLANS

WASHINGTON, May 9.—(INS.)—In laying the foundation for refunding the 4¼ per cent Fourth Liberty Loan in the fiscal year 1933, which amounts to $6,268,222,950 and possibly the First Liberty Loan of $1,933,531,300 next year, Secretary Mellon has for sometime been making plans for a long term bond issue.

The downward revision of the Federal Reserve rediscount rates will be helpful in the Treasury's refunding program and in obtaining the new money that is certain to be necessary during the remainder of the 1931 fiscal year and in 1932, owing to the virtual certainty of a deficit next year.

The rate changes have been due probably more to international and domestic conditions than to anticipation of the government refunding. Gold has been accumulating in this country and there is a desire on the part of the Federal Reserve system to make the New York market so unattractive to investors that large foreign balances held in this country will be withdrawn and taken to London or Paris.

The United States has more gold than it needs; in Europe the opposite condition exists.

The American public debt at the end of April stood at $16,655,379,000, an increase of $470,000,000 since July 1, 1930, the beginning of the fiscal year. Before June 30 there will be maturities of $634,595,000, including a block of $154,281,000 in bills May 18, and two blocks of 2⅞ and 1¾ certificates June 15.

Mine Brings $80,337 At Sheriff's Sale

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., May 9.—The Cleveland Trust Company, Cleveland, as trustee, yesterday purchased real estate and chattel property of the Midvale-Goshen Coal Company, Wainwright, for $80,337, two-thirds of its appraised value, at Sheriff Harry C. Smith's sale.

Humble Oil Buys East Texas Lease

FT. WORTH, May 9.—Humble Oil and Refining Company has purchased two producing wells and lease on 43 acres in the Kilgore pool, Rusk County, East Texas, from the Federated Oil Company for $225,000, of which $175,000 was paid in cash and $50,000 is to be paid out of one-fourth of first oil produced.

Silver Imports Into India Drop

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Silver imports into India during the seven days ended May 1 totaled 120,000 ounces, all of which came from London, says a dispatch to the Department of Commerce from its Bombay office. During the seven days ending April 24, imports totaled 212,000 ounces.

FEDERAL POWER CONTROL URGED

Federal regulation of power companies is needed for adequate control of the industry, Prof. William Z. Ripley, of Harvard, internationally known expert on railroad and utility problems, declared yesterday. He addressed a luncheon of the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh and a dinner of the University Club.

State control of utilities is becoming more of a joke every day, Ripley said. He pointed to the constant change of power company activities from the supply of local service to a vast nation-wide network, and declared state regularatory bodies are incapable of meeting the situation as it now stands. He continued:

"Every time a state commission tries to investigate the fees paid by local electric companies to the supervisory organizations which control them, the power companies have a federal injunction clapped on the commission. The state investigators are told they have no business interfering with an interstate problem."

Oil Well Drilling Shows Big Decline

DENVER, May 9.—Drilling for oil in Lea County, New Mexico, is almost at a standstill. The Hobbs pool, in which 142 wells had been completed up to April 16 with proration potential production of 1,150,712 barrels daily, had only one completion in the month up to April 25 and then had only one well drilling.

In Colorado, drilling is at a standstill on Fort Collins, Wellington, Walden, Tow Creek, Iles and Moffat producing structures. Wyoming has the fewest wells drilling that the state has reported in several years.

BUSINESS INDEX HOLDS LEVEL

NEW YORK, May 9.—The curious economic coma continues. Weekly fluctuations in the patient's pulse are slight and insignificant. The business index remains frozen at the depression level of the past five months. For the week ended May 2 it settled at 78.7 per cent, comparing with 78.9 in the preceding week and 94.2 per cent in the corresponding week last year, says the Business Week in its report covering the week ending today.

The decline in steel activity is slow and no more than seasonal and there are no signs of marked change in demand. The same static condition persists in electric power production, in check payments, currency circulation and merchandise carloadings. A few faint favorable flickers are seen in a rise in residential building at the close of April and in some slight strengthening of wheat prices and bond markets. Most commodities, however, continue to weaken and stocks drift indecisively downward.

Mesta Machine Profit Continues Increase

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

MESTA MACHINE COMPANY enjoyed greater earnings in the first quarter of 1931 than in the corresponding period of last year. The company does not make its quarterly statements public. Continued production at a high rate indicates that the statement for the first half of the year may be expected to show improvement over the net income of $1,271,000 or $2.03 a share on the common stock reported for the first six months of 1930.

Mesta has not been affected by the depression. While the earnings of most corporations have been declining since the late months of 1929, this company's profits have shown a steady rate of increase.

The annual report for 1930 disclosed a profit of $2,509,175 after all charges. This was equivalent to $4.02 a share on 600,000 shares of common stock after deducting preferred dividends. In 1929 net profit was $1,797,242 or $2.81 on the basis of the present capitalization.

Operations Assured

LARGE CONTRACTS RECENTLY booked insure operations at practically a capacity rate for at least the first nine months of the present year. Officials believe that business in sight will keep production at practically its present pace for the balance of 1931.

Steel mill modernization programs have been responsible for the continued large volume of Mesta's business. The company makes rolling mill equipment, rolls for steel mill use and other types of heavy machinery. Early this year a large order was received for new equipment for the Inland Steel Company to cost about $4,000,000.

Dividend Increased

THE COMMON STOCK was placed on a $2 annual dividend basis with the declaration payable October 1, 1930. The regular 50-cent quarterly rate established at that time replaced previous payments of 40 cents regular and 10 cents extra.

The dividend requirements were earned more than twice in 1930 and every indication points to an even more favorable margin for the present year.

The only claim on earnings prior to the common stock is an issue of $1,721,500 of 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock. There is no funded debt.

Current Position Strong

THE COMPANY IS IN an enviable financial position with current assets of $5,679,995 against current liabilities of $1,717,342 at the close of 1930. Cash alone amounted to $3,221,174.

Imports of Leather Goods Show Gain

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The customary spring demand in this country for leather manufactured goods is in evidence again this year.

The Department of Commerce reports imports from all sources amounted to $2,841,789 in March, as compared with $1,161,858 in February, and with $1,821,361 in January. The bulk is made up of leather gloves and leather footwear in the approximate ratio of 50 and 40 per cent, respectively.

STEEL DEMAND DECREASE SLIGHT

Seasonal Decline Makes Appearance, Although Unexpected by Trade

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel demand has undergone only a small further decrease in the past week. There is no visible reason for expecting any actual upturn this side of August, when seasonal increase usually begins to show itself in a mild way. As the official steel ingot production report for April has just been issued, with a slight revision of figures for the first three months of the year, estimates of weekly rates can be made with more confidence than usual, and the course of affairs can be depicted by a few figures.

Production of Bessemer and open-hearth ingots in April is given at 49.29 per cent of capacity existing December 31, 1930, against 54.20 per cent for March, revised from the original 54.74 per cent. The decrease in daily rate was about 9 per cent, and the April rate was just a trifle above that of February. This month will run below February but above January, more than half of the successive gains in the first three months of the year being wiped out. Further decreases are likely to be small and the summer low will in all probability be distinctly above last December's rate, the low point for a long while.

GAIN IN AUGUST

Production in the week ended March 21 may be estimated at 56 per cent and production in the week now ending at 46 per cent, making 10 points decrease in seven weeks, decreases early in the period running about two points a week and late in the period about one point. This is the familiar seasonal decrease, which many observers thought would not occur this year. From present indications there should be a low of about 40 per cent in the fore part of July. In every recent year in which there has been an autumn increase it has begun in August, though in only a small way, the big movement coming in September and October.

When there was no autumn improvement it was because general business was growing poorer. That is not expected now, but rather some sort of improvement. Thus the prospects for steel improvement after July are particularly strong, but that does not mean really fair business. Steel men regard any operating rate under 65 per cent, or perhaps 60 per cent, as bad, and the degree of badness is more or less a detail. An increase from 40 per cent in July to 64 per cent in October would mean 60 per cent increase in tonnage, and it would require a distinct improvement in general conditions to bring that about. Seasonal increase alone would not be nearly as large.

DEMAND SAGS

Nearly all the steel shipped has been against new orders for prompt shipment or specifications for prompt shipment against the ordinary quarterly contracts or the annual rail orders, and the one reflects demand as well as the other, so that steel production from week to week represents closely the volume of demand immediately preceding.

With the decrease that has occurred in the rate of steel production it may therefore be said that there has been a decrease of nearly 20 per cent in total steel demand in less than two months. One would not expect all lines of consumption to have such a decrease, and if so, some lines would have more than 20 per cent decrease. They ought to be conspicuous, but as a matter of fact no large line of consumption can be observed as having a large decrease. There simply seems to be a dull falling off practically all along the line.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

NEW YORK, May 9.

REGARDLESS of where he parks his hat, a smart crook can make a living anywhere. That rule applies, of course, until he gets caught. Then there are other rules. In this particular case, however, the cheater didn't get caught. And as an example of nerve and gall, I don't think you'll find his equal anywhere.

Henry, the crook in question, blew into a middlee western state one day last winter. The reason he stopped in that particular state was very simple. He had no money to go farther. And I can think of no better reason that would make a man to remain where he was.

All his life, with the exception of the occasions on which he was a guest of various states, Henry had made his living by his wits and his rapid line of talk. It was his theory that, with the price of a dairly paper and a good brain, no man should be out of funds for very long. There's a philosophy for you.

Accordingly, Henry bought his paper in the railroad terminal and sat himself down to read. On the very first page, an item caught his eye. An epidemic of bank robberies had broken out in that state and the State Bankers' Association was offering a reward of $250 a head for every bank robber who was captured.

The crook read that item several times and then put down his paper. He looked at the ceiling for several minutes and then snapped his fingers. He didn't need a great deal of money at the moment; just enough to get him comfortably to his destination in the Far West. He strolled to a phone booth and called—of all people—the manager of a nationally known detective bureau in that city.

The manager was evidently familiar with mysterious phone calls. Without too many preliminaries, he agreed to meet Henry in a designated hotel lobby within half an hour.

As soon as they met, the two men retired to a corner. There Henry talked—earnestly and convincingly. He was, he was frank to admit, an ex-convict. But the jail from which he had just been released, he refused to state.

He knew, he continued, of a five-man mob that was about to hold up a certain bank in that city. If he gave the manager the complete information and the manager was thus enabled to catch the five men red-handed, how much of a split would he give him on the $250-a-head reward?

The manager thought rapidly. Five men at $250 each would bring in $1,250—in addition to the great glory that would be his. The story seemed extremely logical to him and he nodded rapidly.

"I'll give you $750 in cash," he cried, "and my word that you will never be troubled in the case. How does that strike you?"

Henry said it was a go. The two men shook hands. Everything was set . . .

The manager next took the crook to the secretary of the State Bankers' Association where Henry again unfolded his story. The secretary fell for it just as heavily as the manager had. But it was his idea that the president of the bank should be told about the situation so that he could make his own plans.

What kind of a con game Henry had in his mind up to this point, I do not know. But I do know that he agreed very readily to the secretary's suggestion.

"That's right," he asserted, "the banker should know about it. But there's no use scaring him out of his wits by telling him I'm double-crossing the mob. Suppose you"—turning to the manager—"tell him I'm an operator in your agency and that I'm going to work with him. That might make him feel easier."

The detective bureau manager, thinking only of the $500 and the great glory that was running toward him, agreed to that point immediately. Accordingly it was done. Henry met the banker in short order and was introduced as a detective. The banker proved to be a nervous little man, who was very much disturbed at the entire idea. But Henry gave him the old con talk and reassured him.

"Nothing at all for you to worry about," he smiled as the manager nodded approval. "I know the plans of the mob and they trust me implicitly. They're only waiting for a machine gun—and when they get it, I'll know it. You'll be warned in plenty of time, and you'll be doing your share toward wiping out a dangerous mob. Don't you worry."

The following afternoon, about an hour after the bank had closed for the day, Henry rushed into the bank and sat down beside the president.

"Something very important has developed," he whispered excitedly. "The machine gun has arrived, but the mob hasn't the money to pay for it. It comes to $450, and if I give them that dough, they'll stage the holdup tomorrow morning. We'll nab 'em and your worries will be over.

"My boss, over at the detective agency, has gone out on another job and I can't reach him. Give me that $450 and he'll give it back to you in the morning. Quick now. Any delay might make the mob suspicious."

It was a grand rush act. All this talk of machine guns and mobs was turning the nervous little banker into something of a wreck. Besides, he knew Henry to be okay. Wasn't he a member of the detective agency that was protecting him?

A short time later, Henry was in a private stateroom on a train that was bound for the West. His ticket and several hundred dollars in cash reposed in his pocket. An expensive cigar in his mouth and a glass in his hand, he smiled to himself as the train roared onward.

"Yes, sir," he murmured. "All a man needs is a good brain and the price of a newspaper."

OUT IN HOLLYWOOD, I hear, they are growing very strict with the writing talent. As though they were so many shopgirls, authors are checked in and out of the studios every day. It's ridiculous, of course—but it's the picture industry's idea of the manner in which authors can be made to write.

Sam Hoffenstein, poet and author, is now with Paramount on the Coast. He was recently about to leave the studio in the middle of the day when a studio cop stopped him.

"What's the big idea?" cried the cop. "Where do you think you're going at this time of the day?"

Sam replied that he was going to get a haircut.

"What?" exclaimed the copper indignantly. "You mean to say you want to get a haircut on the company's time?"

Hoffenstein sighed.

"Why not?" he retorted. "It grows on the company's time, doesn't it?" . . .

May the Best Man Win

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

"I had the right-of-way."

And with these fighting words the Sunday drivers open their motorized elimination tournament.

The struggle is on in the happy valleys, the wooded hills and the smiling suburban subdivisions.

They're absorbing each other's bumps, tearing off crowned and uncrowned fenders, smashing head and taillights and twisting the elusive chassis.

When you have the right-of-way hew to it and let the chips fall where they may. When you have the right-of-way why should you turn out for anybody?

Give the other guy an inch and he will want the junkyard. And he will get it.

So boys, get your share of the road, pick it out of the middle, hold to it and there will be dirty work at the crossroads.

When your engine is coughing its power away, when the spark plugs are frying in their own grease and your egg-shaped wheels are kangarooing along in high speed, that's when you are monarch of all you survey and autocrat of the breakfast and the operating table.

You are an American citizen, pay taxes and vote the straight ticket. You ain't such a good driver, but you know the right-of-way when it reaches up and smacks you in the face.

And don't let any other driver gouge you off your legal trackage. The law says it's yours. You can give the other guy your horn as a preliminary warning, for the law says an eye for an eye and a toot for a toot. But the right-of-way says a head-on for a sideswipe and may the best man win.

Tomorrow is Sunday, with everything fine and dunky. The boys who study their traffic rules will battle it out, and by Monday we will get the casualty lists from the front. Also the back and the edges.

And don't give in. For we admire courage and its stubborn substitutes. Be game to the end and salute us with the famous fading chirp of the evaporating gladiator, "I had the right-of-way."

LOCAL SALES FIRM PLANS EXPANSION

Acquisition of Tool Agency May Necessitate Opening Cleveland Branch Office

The recent acquisition of the agency for the Niles Tool Works by the Arch Machinery Company may be responsible for the opening of a branch office in Cleveland. No definite plans have been made but the question of the expansion of the local organization has been given serious consideration.

Incorporated in May, 1927, the Arch Machinery Company, Park Building, has devoted itself principally to the sale of metal-working machinery. It is a sales organization acting as broker between factory and customer. Its territory includes Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Southeastern Ohio.

ADDS OTHER AGENCIES

Perhaps the most interesting maintenance tool sold by the Arch Machinery Company is the Monarch Keller lathe. This machine is a standard engine lathe, with Keller electrical forming device attached to it. It can turn cylindrical work, both internal and external of irregular contour from a pattern with a profile the contour of the work desired. This pattern, which is nothing more than a sheet of metal of the profile desired in the work, is clamped on the back side of the machine. A finger which controls an electric switch is placed against the profile of the pattern. The machine is set in operation and the finger follows the profile, causing the cutting tool to do likewise. There is not more than thousandths of an inch variation between the finished work and the pattern. This machine has proven highly successful on intricate dies and formed work, cutting down production time from hours to minutes with greater accuracy.

Among other recent agencies added by the Arch Machinery Company are the Norton Company, Morton Manufacturing Company and Seneca Falls Machine Company. Niles Tool Works Company, Hamilton, O., is one of the largest machine tool manufacturers in the world and builds a complete line of railroad tools, steam hammers, bending rolls, hydraulic presses and heavy duty shop equipment.

ORE STEAMER WINS RACE

CLEVELAND, May 9.—The annual race of ore steamers from the head of Lake Superior to lower Lake Erie ports has been won by the National Steel Corporation's steamship Amberg with 10,000 tons of iron ore consigned to Cleveland, inspection of the records of the Ore and Coal Exchange of Cleveland revealed today. Records of the exchange constitute the official decision of the race. Three of the first five boats to finish were National Steel Corporation vessels, all routed to Cleveland. National Steel now has six of its seven vessels carrying ore. This comparatively high rate of ore operations reflects the rate of production prevailing this winter at its Weirton and Detroit steel plants, resulting in depletion of the ore stock piles at those points.

Sugar Institute Members Named

RETAIL STORES REPORT GAIN IN SALES

Building Construction Still 50 Per Cent Under 1930; Crude Oil Output Gains

There has been a slight improvement in the volume of sales of retail stores, particularly in seasonal lines, but jobbers report only a slight improvement in the number of purchases, with buying largely in small amounts, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review.

Lumber and other building materials continue to move slowly, with building construction still averaging about 50 per cent lower than last year. There is a fair demand for hardware and implements, although builders' hardware continues to move slowly. Groceries and provisions are moving in fair volume although prices continue low. Some improvement is noted in the demand for sporting goods and athletic merchandise, although the volume of business is not up to that of previous years.

COLLECTIONS SLOW

Manufacturers of electrical equipment have been receiving some fair orders although the movement of electrical fixtures continues quiet. A rather sharp increase is reported in the production of crude oil particularly in the Central West and prices have been showing an eager tendency. Production of bituminous coal continues at about the lowest rate for the year with prices still running at a low rate.

Collections in this district continue to average slow and irregular although a few jobbers report a slight improvement.

BUILDERS PLAN CREDIT RULES

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Despite the retarding influence of the current business depression, co-operative efforts to promote sound and well-regulated credit practices in the construction industry are making definite progress, and with the eventual revival of business give promise of developing a national standard of construction credit procedure, the executive board of the Associated General Contractors of America was told at the spring meeting here.

Steps to form local co-operative credit bureaus to curb the indiscriminate extension of credit to the shoestring contractor and those of questionable financial responsibility are being taken in many communities, while others are awaiting only more propitious business conditions before launching the scheme, Edward J. Harding, managing director of the association and its director on the board of the Allied Construction Industries of America, sponsors of the plan, reported.

The principles of the plan of the Allied Construction Industries involve the formation of the bureaus in every building community of the country, the drawing up of standard credit terms, the establishment of cash discount and credit limitation dates and the compilation and dissemination of information on delinquent accounts on a local and national basis, Harding explained.

Great Department Store City
Pittsburgh's department stores are among the finest in America and the largest are conveniently located in the downtown district. Since 1924 the retail sales in all classes have increased over 8%, totaling in 1929 the huge sum of $546,240,700.
It recently was announced by Editor and Publisher, of New York, that department store sales in Pittsburgh are, per capita, almost double those of any other city in the world and that they are much greater than those of Detroit and Buffalo combined.

Recent Market Action Thought Encouraging By Wall Street

Wall Street is inclined to regard the action of the market recently as rather encouraging, while it is true that a few issues still reflect persistent selling pressure, it is the contention of most observers that the action of the market since the beginning of the week has tended to convey the impression that the force of really important liquidation has been broken. In support of this theory it is pointed out that persistent weakness in some of the old leaders, like Steel and American Can for instance, is no longer proving extremely unsettling to the general market. On the contrary the main body of stocks has been showing a disposition and increasingly so to disregard the action of those shares.

Considerable short covering has been in progress in Royal Dutch because of the premium demanded when the stock has been borrowed. Important traders who put out the stock are maintaining their short position stubbornly, on the theory that conditions in the oil industry all over the world, and the earnings of Shell, just reported, make the outlook for Royal Dutch unsatisfactory, with omission of the dividend a probability.

The market value of all shares listed on May 1, last, was $48,469,988,485, a decrease of $4,866,406,010, while borrowings of members during April dropped $257,682,370 to $1,651,128,124. This makes the ratio of loans to values 3.40 per cent, compared with 3.58 per cent on April 1, and 3.22 per cent on March 1, the lowest on record. The downward trend in the ratio reflects the small interest in the market by outsiders, according to the opinion of some observers.

Although National Cash Register has been showing losses since the beginning of this year, it is said that the monthly deficits have been growing smaller, and the April figures are reported to have been much better than those for any month in the first quarter. In some quarters a good profit is being predicted for May, based on the progressive improvement which has been shown.

Earnings of Columbia Carbon in the first three months of this year were in line with some of the Wall street estimates and fell 21 cents short of covering the $1.25 a share dividend requirements for the period. Conditions in the carbon black trade are not satisfactory, and it is contended that unless there is improvement shortly, the results for the current quarter also will fail to cover the dividend needs. There has been some talk of a reduction in the current $5 a share rate, but this has come from speculative circles. Nothing has been heard on the subject in responsible quarters.

While the net income of Loose-Wiles in the first quarter showed a decrease from that of the corresponding period a year ago, interests in the company are said to view the outlook as satisfactory, and many believe a more favorable comparison will be recorded in the current three months. It is early for predictions as to results for the current year, but in some quarters the estimates indicate that the final showing will not be far below the $4 a share reported in 1930. Quiet buying has been coming into the stock on all general reactions in the past few weeks, but no attempt has been made to run up the shares.

Power Consumption Higher in Detroit

DETROIT, May 9.—Industrial power consumption in Detroit in April showed an increase over March, but was under April a year ago. Each month this year has shown an increase over the preceding one. Index of electrical power consumption of the Detroit Board of Commerce on April 30 was 148.5, comparing with 147 on March 31; 140 on February 28, and 120 at end of January. On April 30, last year, the index was 164.

Palm-Sugar Market Sought in America

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Ceylon producers are contemplating an effort to develop a market in the United States for palm-sugar, or jaggery, according to the Commerce Department.

Jaggery is made principally from the sap of the flower of the cocoanut palm, and more rarely from the pamyra palm. The taste is said to be similar to that of maple sugar.

Irrigation Program Started in Egypt

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A comprehensive 10-year irrigation program, to cost $120,000,000, has been adopted in Egypt, following recommendations of an international commission which had been appointed to study the subject, according to the Department of Commerce.

American Smelting Makes Price Cut

BOSTON, May 9. — American Smelting and Refining Company has reduced lead 15 points to 3.85c a pound.

VACUUM PROFIT CUT SHARPLY IN 1930

Dividend Unearned First Time Since Dissolution; Year's Net $3.83 a Share

NEW YORK, May 9.—The two features of the Vacuum Oil Company's report for 1930 are that the company probably for the first time since dissolution of the former Standard Oil combine in 1911 failed to cover its dividend requirements from earnings, and that it drew from the surplus of its foreign marketing companies.

On the whole, however, the showing of Vacuum for last year was certainly no worse than that for the majority of leading companies in the industry, and compares favorably with the results for those engaged in operations in foreign oil markets.

After the deduction of dividends of $22,634,222, the company last year showed a deficit of $2,240,735.

$6.96 IN 1929

Net profit amounted to $20,393,487 after charges, reserves and inventory adjustment, equivalent to $3.83 a share on the 5,325,699 average number of $25 par shares outstanding during the year and to $3.26 a share on 5,626,558 shares outstanding at the close of 1930. For 1929, which was the second best year in its history, Vacuum reported net of $35,767,627, or $6.96 a share on 5,139,887 shares outstanding.

Included in last year's net profit, however, were dividends from the foreign marketing subsidiaries which exceeded by $6,084,464 the actual earnings of those companies. This withdrawal from their surplus was equivalent to $1.14 a share on the average number of Vacuum shares outstanding.

FOREIGN OUTLOOK

That foreign operations were adversely affected is apparent, and since the close of last year the situation has grown worse.

In connection with last year's earnings report, however, it should be taken into consideration that operations of the domestic companies which were acquired late last year are not included for the full year. Both White Star Refining Company and Wadhams Oil Company were not actually taken over until very late in the year, and the consolidated report of Vacuum takes in their results only from the date of acquisition, or for the last two months of the year.

SECURITY LOAN TOTAL DOWN

NEW YORK, May 9.—While the total known security loans are still above levels of earlier stages of the last bull market, there is ample ground for believing they are fast approaching minimum levels. The lowest recorded volume of loans was $6,465,000,000 on April 30, 1926. Figures prior to 1926 are not available. At that time the market value of listed stocks was only $33,457,000,000 or $15,113,000,000 less than now.

The minimum known volume of security loans in the country declined $256,000,000 in April, bringing the total to $7,456,000,000, the lowest level since April 30, 1927. Security loans have declined without interruption for the past 12 months, the total decline being $3,178,000,000. At present the loans are 43½ per cent below the peak level of $13,205,000,000, established September 30, 1929.

ITALIAN FIRMS IN MERGER

WASHINGTON, May 9.—An important merger, with a total capitalization of approximately $6,000,000, has taken place between two of the most important producers in the Italian paper industry, according to the Commerce Department.

The fusion is the indirect result of the plea made last year by a group of Italian producers to the National Facist Federation of the paper industry, that it study the overproduction problem and bring about a limitation in the number of working days.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Kansas City Southern System and subsidiaries reported for 1930 net income of $1,432,916, equal to $2.04 a share on the common stock, compared with $3,377,772, or $3.47 a share in 1929.

Motor Wheel Corporation for March quarter, including subsidiaries, net profit was $14,792, after federal taxes, interest, etc., equal to five cents a share on 856,000 shares, against $594,435, or 72 cents a share on 825,000 shares in the first quarter, 1930.

The Mengel Company reported for the first quarter net loss of $14,426, compared with net profit of $142,922 in the first quarter of last year.

New Jersey Zinc Company reports March quarter net income of $860,769, after depreciation, depletion, taxes, etc., against $1,671,867 in the first quarter, 1930.

TEXTILE TRADE OFF IN ITALY

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Although the cotton spinning industry in Italy was reported to be working at about 70 per cent of normal capacity during the latter part of April and the majority of the weavers at about 67 per cent, manufacturers of such specialties as velvets, elastics, etc., were able to maintain better operating schedules, according to the Department of Commerce. Operations in the wool manufacturing industry showed a further decline with orders for next winter very disappointing.

In the silk industry, many mills are closed and the balance are working sporadically. First-quality raw silk has fallen to record low values, and reelers are concerned over possible developments as the new cocoon crop comes onto the market. The rayon industry reports spotty activity with the better managed plants operating at about 80 per cent of capacity.

Stocks Score Rally, Rails Disappoint, Bear Market Wane Seen.

By Wall Street Spectator

NEW YORK, May 9.

THE STEADFAST contention of this column that the market was shaping itself for a substantial rally was amply borne out by the turn of affairs in Friday's session. Under the impetus of a last hour buying drive which was at the pace of a 5,000,000-share day, stocks boomed sharply with the 90 composite stocks in the Standard Statistics index showing a gain of approximately four points.

THE FAILURE of the rail group to respond in like measure to the buoyant tone of the market dampens the outlook for further sustained improvement from this point, although the chances favor a continued selective recovery.

Several quarters in voicing their belief that all selling has not yet been

Steel Among Numerous Shares Showing Gain Of Point—Case Declines

NEW YORK, May 9.—(A.P.)—Stocks rallied rather briskly at the opening today as the covering in progress at yesterday's close carried over. U. S. Steel, American Telephone and American Can all rose a point. Atchison was up two and Eastman Kodak three, while Auburn Auto quickly showed a five-point advance. Case and Johns-Manville were heavy, losing about a point.

ARIZONA MINING ACTIVITY DOWN

PHOENIX, Ariz., May 9.—Arizona copper mining activity, already reduced to less than 40 per cent of normal in the face of continued low prices, will be cut still further soon.

The Magma Copper Company at Superior announced today it would cease operations June 12 for six weeks in observance of its annual "summer vacation." Last year the suspension was for 30 days. The company said the shutdown will mean the laying off of 600 men, but they will be put back to work July 27.

The United Verde Copper Company stated that on or about May 21 it will discontinue production of copper at Jerome and Clarkdale, Ariz., for an indefinite period.

Gov. George W. P. Hunt has called business and professional and agricultural leaders to meet in Phoenix next Monday to work out a definite program for placing a tariff on copper.

RATES LOWERED BY 7 BANKS

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A reduction in rediscount rates has been ordered by seven of the 12 Federal Reserve banks.

The banks at Chicago, Cleveland and St. Louis yesterday lowered their rates from 3 to 2½ per cent. On Wednesday the Philadelphia bank dropped its rate from 3½ to 3 per cent and Boston announced a decrease from 2½ to 2 per cent. On Thursday New York dropped its rate from 2 to 1½ per cent, the lowest rate in the history of the Federal Reserve system, and the Dallas bank announced a decrease from 3½ to 3 per cent.

The easing of the money rate throughout the country was attributed to a desire of the banks to encourage borrowing, which has been at a low point for the last year.

Ordered to Stop Price Fixing Method

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Coty, Inc., has been ordered by the Federal Trade Commission to discontinue alleged resale price maintenance methods. The commission has ordered the company to stop carrying into effect by agreements, contracts or co-operation, a system of suggested resale prices for articles which it sells.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Keep Him Guessing If You Want to Hold His Love

Why do men fall out of love? Marie's wondering. It's not because she isn't pretty and charming. Ever since grammar school days, boys have cluttered her doorstep, raved over her sparkling brown eyes and cloud of red curls, and tried to win her favor.

"Making Marie" was no easy task . . . she kept them all guessing. Then came along Don and Dan Cupid——

Popular With Boys

And Marie . . . saucy, difficult Marie—fell completely in love with Don. And now see what's happened:

"Dear Sally:

"I am simply heartbroken, and so puzzled that I just don't know what to do. I can't understand it at all. To put it brutally, I've been jilted!

"I don't want to sound conceited, but I just can't understand how it can have happened to me. If I'd been homely, or unpopular with boys, it wouldn't puzzle me so. But ever since I can remember, boys have liked me and raved about how pretty I was, and what a good fellow I was. I have red hair and brown eyes, and I've always been jolly and full of fun. I've never taken any of them seriously until I met Don.

"And then I guess I fell just as hard for him as they claimed other boys fell for me. And he seemed terribly in love with me too . . . at first. We were to have been married soon, and I was just so happy I hardly knew myself. I couldn't think of anything or anybody but him. Honestly, I gave him my heart and all the deepest love I had. And being in love like that seemed to change me, too. I forgot all about being just a silly kid. I guess I grew up. Don and I were always together, and I know that he knew how much I loved him.

Returned His Ring

"Well, to make a long story short, about three months ago he seemed to change. He didn't come over so often. And lots of times when he did come, he didn't seem happy. He'd be irritable, and push me away if I started to put my arms around him. And then—how can I write it?—he told me one night that he guessed he had made a mistake . . . that he didn't love me any more!

"Of course I gave him back his ring. I wouldn't try to hold any man against his will. But oh, I still do love him so! And I see him every now and then, at dances—no, I haven't stayed at home and sulked—and he is always nice to me . . . Oh, do you think maybe I can get him back? What shall I do? What was wrong?

"MARIE."

Well, youngster, that was tough luck. And, having been jilted several times myself, I can guess how you're feeling. Maybe my hunch about your trouble isn't right—but here it is for what it's worth:

You smothered your big boy with too much love. He fell for a light-hearted, gay, spunky little red-head, who'd always kept boys at arm's length—a tempting, tantalizing little eyeful who was different every time he met her, who kept him up on his toes . . . who turned life into a merry adventure.

Change Was Disastrous

Then you fell for him—and immediately you changed. All the oodles of pep which had made you a merry madcap were directed into one channel—loving Don. You lost your buoyancy and lightness. You settled down into the heavy stuff—and it didn't work. It didn't work because, though you still were pretty, you were no longer difficult and exciting and amusing. You weren't a captivating eyeful any longer, Marie. You were a heavy, dragging, monotonous armful, with only one song to your repertoire—"I surrender, dear."

You surrendered, kid, until you became a pain in the neck. Hurty words, but they're true.

Why do men fall out of love? That's why . . . as many a sweetheart and wife has found to her grief.

And what'll you do now? Try this. When you meet him, be your old self . . . friendly, cordial, gay, but impersonal. Treat him nicely, but don't make a fuss over him. And if he shows a new interest in you, don't just fall right into his hands again. Kid him a little. Let him do a little pursuing . . . and if you do get him back, love him and try to understand him . . . and always keep your touch light!

Here's wishing you happiness, and heaps of it.

Safe Thrones -:- -:- -:-

THE TYRANT OF SOME CHILDLESS ELDERLY COUPLES.
MADAMA FASHION - SHE QUEENS IT IN THE HEART OF FIFI!
A KING BY REAL DIVINE RIGHT - TRIUMPHANTLY ENTHRONED IN THE HEART OF THE FAMILY!
QUEEN OF THE POET HEART! "SPRING - SPRING - BEAUTIFUL SPRING!"
MANY A PLAIN "GRANDMA" REIGNS BEAUTIFUL - AND SUPREME - IN THE HEART OF SOME CHILD.

THRONES TOTTER — KINGS FALL - BUT SOME, LIKE THE BROOK, GO ON FOREVER!

The dust of crashing thrones has dimmed the sun around the world off and on since thrones were invented. Since the "Big War," as little boys call the World War they never saw, and that seems only a fortnight or so ago to the rest of us, that kind of dust has been sniffable pretty often; we've grown callous to the sound of splintering throne-legs, the rolling of crowns down palace steps, and the grime of working hands fingering their settings of starry sapphires, giant diamonds, sinisterly beautiful emeralds and blood-red rubies.

Thrones of state are going into the limbo of vanished things along with the "snows of yesteryear." Once a king was not sure of the throne for himself from one exciting day to another, but he knew SOMEBODY would sit upon it. Now, he is not only ruefully suspicious that he may leave his throne some bright spring morning himself, but that he will be the last of his or any family to sit upon it—for the throne itself is journeying to the MUSEUM, to be looked upon some day by mammas and papas and little children on Sunday, with curiosity.

Recently the most picturesque, and picturesque and good-humored to the last, king of our times has left the throne of Spain, with its twin gilded chairs, its four carved steps, guarded by its four great lions, each with a great paw upon a globe.

The throne-chair of the Czar of Russia, it is said, stood, dusty and overturned, like a piece of lumber in an obscure corner of the palace, forgotten, pushed aside, after his fall. It is interesting to wonder where this latest empty throne-chair of a king will find its way at the last.

Most of the world, I should think, wishes Alfonso of Spain happiness and good fortune in exile. He lived the life to which he was born, in the country that was his own—as MOST OF US DO. And harmed no one—more than the most of us do unmeaningly. Most of the world will know that he must be sad, not as a king—but as a man leaving his country.

Thrones of state are unstable—they go. But thrones of the heart are different—they remain—always.

The people and the things we love are secure under the crowns we give them, and behind the palace gates of our hearts.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Flowers Sent By Veritzen Cause Madge to Worry

My father looked after Dicky with puzzled eyes. Then he looked down at me and patted my hand.

"Is everything all right with you, Sweet?" he asked anxiously.

I had the sudden impulse to draw him into a corner and tell him all about Philip Veritzen and his embarrassing attentions and my fear that Dicky was concealing jealous anger beneath his manner of Christmas good cheer. But I choked it back, for I was loath to add to my father's already heavily burdened soul any additional worry because of me. I knew that Christmas time was always an especially hard time for him. He could not help crucifying himself with the remembrance that from my fourth birthday on I had had no Christmases with both father and mother sharing in the plans for my happiness. I knew that he never would forgive himself for that sinful folly of long ago when he had fled from my mother and me, taking with him my mother's best friend. I had known for years that every Christmas seeing Junior's joy in romping with Dicky he had visualised me as a lonely little child who not only was deprived of a father's companionship, but who had a meager Christmas because of that father's dereliction.

"Wonderfully all right, father," I answered stoutly and then changing the subject quickly, "Have you seen the basement playroom?"

"Yes," he responded quickly and something in his manner told me he was glad to put away his memories. "I was down there just a few minutes ago with Jim looking at the fire. I've had him keep it up for days, you know so there would be no possibility of dampness."

"Yes, I know, you thoughtful dear," I said warmly and, catching his hands I drew him under the mistletoe of the chandelier. "Give me my first Christmas kiss, father. It belongs to you."

"Not to Richard?" he queried.

"Not to anyone but you." I told him with the mental reservation that if Dicky had seized the opportunity which was his when he had first come into the room he, and not my father, would have had that first kiss.

I did not regret the exchange, however, when I saw the light in my father's eyes. I know, of course, that Junior and I are all he has in the world and that to him I am infinitely dearer than anything else. From the moment when, after his long search as the "Questor" of Broadway, he found me and claimed me as his daughter, he never has left ungratified a wish of mine that he could discover and grant. Indeed I have to be careful about expressing a preference for anything because, at no matter what pains or expense, he will try to indulge it.

"My darling," he breathed as he kissed me and held me in a tight embrace, "Always my thoughtful girl. You make me very happy, sweetheart — far more happy than I have ever deserved to be."

"Hush!" I put my hand tenderly across his mouth. "Do not make me unhappy by saying those things about yourself. Come, walk through the rooms and tell me how you like them."

"They're the loveliest I've ever seen," he said, and in his voice was the enthusiasm I had missed from Dicky's. Then he stopped short, looking at the mantel where Philip Veritzen's offering was enthroned.

"What an exquisite thing," he said. "Where did you pick it up?"

"It's a Christmas gift from Mr. Veritzen," I answered furious because I could not keep from flushing.

He did not answer for a long half minute, keeping his eyes on the crystal and silver container filled with roses. Then he let his eyes wander to the other roses filling all the vases in the room.

"Did he send all these also?" he asked.

"Yes, he brought them this afternoon," I answered miserably.

"Then that's why—" he began, and broke off into reveries again, but I could have finished the sentence for him. He had noticed Dicky's manner as he left me and now he believed that he had the reason for it.

"Dearest," he said at last in a low voice and pressing my hand tightly, "I am afraid you are going to have trouble with that man. He evidently is very much attracted to you, and from what I have heard of him he has no scruples whatever concerning the rights of others. I can see that you would be loath to appeal to your husband for help in dealing with him, but—Will you not come to me if ever your employer becomes obnoxious? Your employer—I hate that word, hate to think of you subject in any way to his whims. But will you let me know if you need me?"

"Don't you know without asking that I would, you foolish father," I said rubbing my cheek against his arm and wondering miserably what he would say if he knew that I was if not actually encouraging Mr. Veritzen's attentions, at least not actively discouraging them, because of my hope instigated by Lillian that I could influence him to become reconciled with Noel and Mary. I could imagine his gentle face, grown stern and his eyes disapproving, for I knew that he held almost unreachable standards of conduct for his only daughter. There was no room for compromise in his nature.

"Then I am content my dear," he said. "But be very careful in your dealings with this man. A little uneasiness is good for Richard, but too much would be distinctly dangerous."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

"Halo Vision" Often a Symptom of Glaucoma

Recently I wrote of a disease of the eye called trachoma. Today I want to tell you of another eye condition with a name which sounds very much like trachoma; it is called "glaucoma."

Dr. Copeland

Glaucoma is a disease which, if neglected, results in blindness. A cure may be obtained when it is recognized early and given proper treatment.

I am sorry to say it is too often neglected. This is too bad, because 15 per cent of all the blindness in this country is caused by glaucoma. It is essentially an ailment of later life, causing one-third of all blindness after the fortieth year.

This disease is characterized by increased pressure within the eyeball. The pressure results in damage to the optic nerve, the nerve of sight. It produces gradual or sudden impairment of vision and ultimately complete blindness. The cause has not as yet been determined.

As a rule, the first thing noted by the patient is dimness of vision. Frequently, this is mistakenly laid to the glasses or to eyestrain.

At times the victim will notice a cloud before the eyes. Gazing at a light, he will notice a halo or rainbow around it. "Halo vision," as the doctors call it, is one of the pretty constant symptoms of glaucoma.

In many cases the vision returns to normal. In others there are repeated attacks of impaired vision.

With the onset of what is called "acute glaucoma," pain in the affected eye is severe. Indeed, it may be almost unbearable. It may radiate over the head, reaching the ears and teeth. Many times it is mistaken for simple neuralgia.

Please remember that any discomfort in the eyes, or disturbance in vision, should not be neglected. Modern instruments for eye examination, particularly in determining eyeball pressure, enable the doctor to determine accurately the real nature of conditions that are of great importance to your health and welfare.

In a recent article on this disease, a comparison was made between glaucoma and cancer. The cause of these diseases is not known; both start slowly, giving ample warning of their presence, and may be successfully treated if discovered early. If neglected, these dreaded diseases leave their permanent stamp upon the victim.

Answers to Health Queries

M. R. Q.—What causes one to feel like yawning all the time, although it cannot seem to be accomplished with any degree of success? 2—What would account for a tight, depressed feeling in the temples and forehead? There is no real headache, merely the tightness. 3—What causes dreaming all through the night?

A.—This is due to deficient oxygenation of the blood; may be caused by fatigue, nasal obstruction, low blood pressure, poor ventilation, etc. It might also be due to wax in the ears. Have your doctor advise you so that definite measures may be taken to clear up the trouble. 2—This may be due to nervousness, strain or over-fatigue. Improve your health and you will probably notice general results. 3—This may be due to some intestinal disorder, to poor ventilation in the sleeping room, to eating just before retiring or to over-fatigue.

M. L. U. Q.—Is it necessary for a girl of 16 to have both tonsils and adenoids removed in order to prevent an unpleasant breath? 2—What should a girl of 16, 5 feet 4½ inches tall, weigh?

A.—Not unless the tonsils and adenoids are diseased and causing trouble. Unpleasant breath can often be traced to a disturbance of this kind. Have your doctor advise you. 2—She should weigh about 120 pounds. This would be about the average for one of this age and height, as determined by examination of a large number of persons.

MRS. B. B. Q.—What causes itching of the face and body?

A.—This may be pruritus and may be due to constipation, auto-intoxication, intestinal disturbances or to some food poisoning.

* * *

B. J. F. Q.—What would cause a cracking noise in different parts of the body when arising in the morning?

A.—This may be due to a rheumatic tendency. Massage should be helpful, but it would be wise to make sure there is no underlying disturbance or infection at the source of the trouble.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

Any woman can have her own way and manage her husband—if she only knows HOW. She can do it and still keep everybody happy in her home, and without the aid of a single tear.

I saw this demonstrated a few days ago by a woman who knows her job. She is lovely and bright and altogether the best wife I've met in years.

Her husband was planning a business trip and she did not want to go along. Did she pout and say she hadn't any clothes and he was a brute to drag her over the desert all the way to the coast, and why didn't she marry the other man and not such a heartless, inconsiderate beast?

NO!

She said she would go and would fit herself out in the last word in togs for the trip. Times are a bit hard and she knew that would register. It did. She was going to put off a lot of things he wanted done, and that registered. She said he would be pretty mean to go without her, and if he did she imagined he would have a pretty fine time and not think of her. This made the man feel attractive and important.

She reminded him that the next time they visited this city, they have promised to be the guest of her former fiance, still a bachelor, and living in a lovely home all alone. She KNEW he didn't like that man.

The fact is, she did everything that most women would NOT do, to get out of taking the trip.

The man left for the coast—alone.

Men are arbitrary beasts. And they have that longing to run the ranch. If you make them think they are managing things and having their own way you can always get YOUR way, and this is true in every single case—if you don't count the exceptions. Don't laugh, because that goes for every rule. If 99 men out of 100 fall for a thing, you can say it works. That one of them won't, doesn't hurt the trick.

I know a woman who wanted a new fur coat. She told her husband at the beginning of the season that Mrs. Jones was getting a beautiful new coat, but that she, being inclined to think they should economize a little, wouldn't think of getting one. She liked the old one EVEN IF IT WAS A BIT TOO SHORT FOR THIS YEAR'S STYLES. And she thought cheap fur coats were not a good buy, because you just had to buy another next year and they ALWAYS looked tacky. She was so glad she had decided not to buy a new coat.

And every day in every way, she brought up the subject, making herself out such an angel for NOT getting a coat that her husband insisted—he even dragged her to the store to look at coats.

* * *

And the furrier looked wise and trotted out the ones the wife had already picked out and had told him to produce upon her arrival.

What these fur dealers know about WOMEN!

It's all so much better than pouting, which doesn't get you anything, and makes everybody miserable. Then, too, only little women can pout. The big ones look so ridiculous.

How do you manage to have your own way at home? I am sure the women would be glad of any suggestions from their sister wives.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Gals who still stick to the short bob must keep in mind that the shingle is distinctly dodo. If the hair has a wave in the front, it should wave also at the rear. Otherwise the little dearheart has but a half portion of a hairdress on her celestial head.

The reformation in the use of makeup is due to the fact that the whole world is sick to sadness of lip smears and cheeks as hectic as red flannel. Make-up is no longer a novelty. It started on its blazing trail shortly after the war and has carried on for a long term. Beauty fads have to be called in sometime or other. Rouge and lipstick serve best when they are used in moderation, simulating natural coloring.

Hangnails are wretched torturing miseries, and they are self-inflicted. Keep the cuticle about the nail soft by nightly anointings with cream. Keep it detached from the nail surface by the use of the orange wood stick. Then hangnails simply won't be. When the cuticle grows far up onto the nail it cracks and breaks, forming painful abrasions. Clip off hangnails with the sharp, curved scissors and start a course of treatment that will prevent others from forming. They are subject to infection.

A good waist-tapering exercise is a sort of rotating movement. You place your hands on your hips, turn head, shoulders, all the uppor portion of the body as far to the right as you can, then to the left. This motion flexes and tightens muscles that extend from chest to hips and from shoulders to waistline. When fatigued, rest. Then start again.

The average distance from hairline to chin is nine inches. From the hairline to a point between the eyebrows should be three inches. From eyebrows to the end of the nose three inches more. From nose to the bottom of the chin, three inches. Get out your tape measure and you'll find that these figures won't vary by more than a quarter of an inch.

If the head is broad at the back and the neck thick and heavy, the swirl-across coiffure is a happy choice. Wave lines run up and down, instead of crosswise, making the head appear longer and imparting length to the neck. The "draped bob" is interesting women who have collected more birthdays than they wish to reveal. The hair on the right side grows longer than the left, and is folded into a French twist—a revival of an old but piquant hairdress.

Household Hints

Dressing for plain vegetable salads: To plain French dressing add one tablespoonful mustard, two teaspoonfuls Worcestershire sauce and one-third teaspoonful onion juice.

Banana sandwich: Butter thin slices of whole-wheat bread and fill with thin slices of firm bananas, sprinkled with sugar and a few drops of lemon juice. Serve very fresh. Or use thin-sliced bananas moistened with mayonnaise.

When hemming table linen, make an additional crease in the linen after the hem has been turned back, exactly at the line where the hem begins. Then overcast instead of hemming and the work will go more quickly and evenly.

If the down quilt is soiled and, despite your attachment for it, you are reluctant to have it in sight, cover it with pretty sateen or cretonne, following the original lines of stitching.

It pays to wash several pairs of gloves at a time. The best way to launder washable gloves is to use tepid soapsuds for washing, tepid soapsuds for rinsing and in the last tepid suds add one tablespoonful of glycerine.

To remove iodine stains immediately immerse them in a gallon of water to which has been added about two tablespoonfuls of strong household ammonia, or try chloroform, alcohol or hyposulphite of soda; or soak stains in lime water.

CORRECT MANNERS

Thanks for the Graduation Gifts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to graduate this term and have already received many gifts. Will you please tell me what to write and how to thank the people in a way which is not too formal? And what can I write to my boy friend to thank him in a very sweet way? Although I see him very often—nearly every day—I would like to surprise him by writing him a note of thanks when I write and thank the others.

L. S.

Well, well, well, I'm sure that a young lady about to be graduated will be able to write a much lovelier and "sweeter" and more personal note of thanks to these kind friends than an outsider would ever be able to suggest to her! Especially one who writes such a good note as you wrote to me.

However, maybe I could offer a few helpful general suggestions: First, please let me beg you not to use pink paper. This just "isn't done," and you'll be severely criticized. Next, use black ink or very dark blue.

In the beginning of a note of thanks, the ideal thing to do is to thank for the thoughtfulness, the kindness, the sweet friendliness on the part of the sender of the gift. This makes the thoughtfulness what it should be—more important than the gift itself. "How especially kind you were"—"It was characteristically kind of you to think of me at graduation time, and I appreciate your dear thought with all my heart."

Then, in the next part of the letter of thanks, chat informally about the present. Name it—don't vaguely say, as some people do, "your gift." If it is a thing "whose simple doom is to be beautiful," interpret that beauty, enthusiastically, articulately. If it is meant to be both beautiful and useful, you will have a particularly simple time making your friend know of your appreciation. In any event, keep in mind that the friend put into the gift thought and care and taste and money, and will be grateful for your appreciation.

Mother, as Usual, Knows Best

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Should a call be made on the mother of a bride after the wedding? My mother and I have had an argument—quite friendly—about this, and mother maintains that this was done when she "was a girl" and that it is still correct. What say you?

WANTS TO KNOW

Mother is right. It was, as she said, correct when she was stepping forth as a young girl, to call on the mother of the bride after the wedding, and, as she says, it is still correct. You see, the idea is that the mother of the bride was hostess of the occasion, and so we must show our honor to our hostess by calling on her after her party, as we would after any other formal party. You owe mother an apology!

The Afternoon Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me what a man and woman should wear to an afternoon (4 o'clock) wedding?

A. R.

Formal day clothes. The woman should wear her best-looking day-clothes, an ensemble that is appropriate to the season, or a formal day dress and coat.

The man, if he wishes to dress in perfect form for the wedding, should wear his formal day clothes.....cutaway coat and dark striped trousers, or a short black coat and dark striped trousers. If he can't do this, he would wear a dark business suit.

LOOKS LIKE TOSSUP IN PREAKNESS

POSSIBLY THE FINISH of the big race will see victory going to a horse that has figured far less prominently than the favorites in the dope and public prints. But to whatever lengths the form sheets may be trusted, the running of the colorful Preakness at Pimlico this afternoon is expected to be a struggle between the stables owned by two branches of the Whitney family and a resumption of last year's duel between Equipoise and Twenty Grand.

Mrs. Payne Whitney

Until a couple of weeks ago, the race had been figured to be almost at the mercy of Equipoise, owned by Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney. But suddenly that horse developed an ailment that caused him to finish sixth in his first start of the season, and though he is said to have recovered fully there can be no assurance that he is back in his best form again until he has actually proved it. Meanwhile, Twenty Grand, owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney and her son, John Hay, after a spell of backwardness in his training, rose to a brilliant peak in winning the Wood Memorial by a sensational finish, and the result is a new situation that makes the outcome of today's race look like a tossup.

IT WAS BY winning the Wood Memorial that Gallant Fox last year began his sensational drive to the 3-year-old championship, and though few go so far as to predict that Twenty Grand may equal the Fox's string of victories, there are many who look upon the performance of Mrs. Whitney's horse in the Wood as a signpost indicating that he is likely to be successful in the Preakness, at least.

Beating the horses that Twenty Grand defeated in the Wood and Beating a star like Equipoise are different propositions, however, and most race followers are unwilling to believe that Twenty Grand is capable of defeating Equipoise today before he has actually done it. Last year Twenty Grand beat Equipoise in their first two meetings, but in a third race Equipoise was the winner, and the latter has since appeared to have a slight edge in all-around form. It looks like a close struggle that may go either way, though there is a possibility that some other horse, Mate or Anchors Aweigh, for instance, may come along and beat both favorites.

BARRING A LAPSE between 1889 and 1909, the Preakness has been run annually since 1873. The race is named for the horse that first won it, and that horse in turn was named for the New Jersey town in which his owner resided.

Originally the race was at a mile and a half, but the present distance is a mile and three-sixteenths. It was richest in 1928, when it brought $60,000 to the owner of the winner, Victorian. Last year it was worth $51,925 to the owner of Gallant Fox.

THEODORE E. MUELLER, of this city, owner of the speedy 3-year-old, Pittsburgher, one of the spring sensations on Kentucky tracks, decided not to start his crack black colt in the Preakness today, but to keep him at Churchill Downs in order to spare him the trip to Pimlico and back and center all his efforts on the Kentucky Derby a week from today. Twice within the last two weeks, first at Lexington and next at Churchill Downs, Pittsburgher defeated fields of Derby eligibles in impressive style. Yesterday, at Churchill Downs, in the Preparation, at one mile, he finished third to Boys Howdy and Sweep All, but again beat out such Derby horses as Spanish Play, Insco, Ilium, Barometer, Don Leon, B'ar Hunter and Prince D'Amour.*

Jack Quinn

IT WAS EVIDENT that Wilbert Robinson, Brooklyn pilot, had made a mistake when he sent old Jack Quinn to the slab to start a game in the first week of the season, as the veteran spitballer proved unable to go the distance.

But Uncle Robbie has since found the right use to make of Quinn. As a relief hurler the old boy has been the best in the majors. Jack has been used five times in that role—he worked yesterday for the third time in five days—and has not been scored on in a total of seven and one-third innings pitched. He has held two games safe in the last three days with the Robins having only a one-run lead on each occasion.

ELEVEN EXTRA-INNING games have been played in the American League so far, and Washington has figured in no fewer than five of them. And of the five overtime bouts the Senators have captured only one, three of the others resulting in defeats and one ending in a tie.

Walter Johnson's ballers have been on the down-grade since an operation for appendicitis deprived them of the services of First Baseman Joe Judge. Yesterday's 10-inning reverse at Detroit was their fifth defeat in their last six games and sent them below the .500 mark.

RALSTON HEMSLEY, missing Pirate catcher, picked out a swell time to take French leave. He would have had a tough time getting his regular job back anyhow, in view of the way Eddie Phillips is going, and he hasn't helped his cause by incurring the displeasure of the Buccaneer management at a stage when good judgment would have prompted him to stay around and ooze more fighting spirit than usual if he hoped to regain his first-string backstop ranking. As long as the hustling Phillips keeps going at his present fine pace, Hemsley will not be missed.*

ONE WELCOME FEATURE in connection with the fact that the Bill Tilden-Vincent Richards professional tennis series of matches is finally to get under way in New York tonight is that the beginning of actual play may cause the promoters to call a merciful halt in their tiresome campaign of publicity and ballyhoo.

For weeks the public has been bunked with a lot of rot about Richards' declaring he would charge Tilden $10 an hour for the tennis lessons he was going to give Big Bill; about Tilden's flying into a rage and threatening to sue for libel, and about all the terrible things that would happen when the two came together.

OF COURSE, IT was nothing more than publicity faking, intended solely for the purpose of attracting attention to the match and bringing out cash customers by giving the public the impression that it was to be a bitter grudge affair.

That sort of stuff is foreign to tennis, though an old game in other sports with Jack Curley, the promoter. In aping ring fighters, or permitting themselves to be pictured by press agents as doing so, Tilden and Richards are stooping to gate tactics that do not become either themselves or tennis.

Jack (Kid) Berg

PERHAPS TONY HERRERA has not yet advanced so far that it takes a world-beater to defeat him, but at the same time it requires a pretty good fighter to turn the trick, and in winning the decision over the Scotch-Mexican in their 10-round bout at New York last night, Jack (Kid) Berg spiked the theory that his recent knockout at the hands of Tony Canzoneri had washed him up. After all there was no good reason for figuring that Berg was through because Canzoneri had stopped him at a weakening weight. Three years ago, in stopping Berg in five rounds, Billy Petrolle floored him nine times in the first round and knocked him down 14 times altogether. That was a whole lot more punishment than Berg took in the Canzoneri bout, yet he came back to fight his way to the world junior welterweight championship and to become the outstanding contender for the lightweight title.*

TWENTY GRAND, THE PREAKNESS FAVORIAE, WINNING RECENT WOOD MEMORIAL RACE

NINE TO START IN MARYLAND CLASSIC

BALTIMORE, May 9.—(AP)—The fortieth running of the $50,000 Preakness over the mile-and-three-sixteenths route at the Pimlico track makes today the day of days of the Maryland racing season. Other important races have been run, more are to be decided, but to all Maryland, the Preakness ranks first.

Out at the track, the mutuel department set up additional booths to handle the extra thousands of dollars expected to be wagered through the machines. Every available reserved seat was grabbed up days ago.

EXPECT 40,000 CROWD

With the infield thrown open, the Maryland Jockey Club is prepared to handle a crowd of from 30,000 to 40,000.

Nine of the East's best thoroughbreds were groomed for the battle for the purse of $50,200. The winner's purse will fall nearly $10,000 short of the $60,000 won by Victorian in 1928.

The course is expected to be dried out and fast by the time the field is sent away by Starter Jim Milton at about 5 p. m., eastern standard time.

James Rowe, trainer of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable's three nominations, was in good humor this morning as he saw the prospect of a track just to Twenty Grand's liking. On a fast track, and with Surf Board as his running mate, Twenty Grand is expected to go to the post the 7 to 5 favorite. In event another rain falls, Anchors Aweigh probably will replace Surf Board.

C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, a colt Maryland fans cannot forget for his game victory over Twenty Grand and A. C. Bostwick's Mate

CLUB IS IRATE AS CATCHER DISAPPEARS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Absent without leave, Rolly Hemsley, Pirate catcher, today is in the very bad graces of the Pittsburgh officials who intimated that severe punishment was to be meted out to the receiver unless he could show good cause for his remaining away from the club.

Hemsley was given permission by Manager Ens to visit his Ohio home after the Buccos had finished their game in Huntington, W. Va., last Monday. Rolly, according to the Pittsburgh pilot, was ordered to be back at Forbes Field Wednesday. He failed to show up and was missing throughout the Thursday clash of the Freebooters and Cardinals.

OFFICIALS INDIGNANT

Owner Barney Dreyfuss and Manager Ens yesterday were highly indignant over the actions of the catcher. The officials of the club agreed that Hemsley's act is a severe break of discipline and that he would be called to task for his failure to report to his club.

The officials of the club admitted to the Sun-Telegraph last night that Hemsley's case was serious. Skipper Ens, in particular, was much provoked, he hinting that he had gone as far as he would go in connection with the young catcher. The club directors stated that in all probability, Rolly would not be allowed to accompany the club to New York tonight when the team leaves on the first eastern trip. The only way that he could get straightened out to rejoin his mates would be to report today and to give a good reason for his absence.

Hemsley had been taking good care of himself since before the start of the season. He was picked as the regular catcher at the beginning of the race, but Rolly could not get into his normal batting stride. So when the team got into a rut, Manager Ens decided to switch to Eddie Phillips. Eddie proved a lively fellow under the plate and his bat was a big part in the subsequent successes hung up by the Buccos. Phillips was doing the catching when the Pirates bowled over the Redbirds twice in succession in St. Louis and in the recent slump of the team the new man has been consistent in all departments of play.

KREMER TO HURL

The Pirates and Cardinals are slated to tangle in the third and final game of the series this afternoon. Yesterday's scheduled contest was postponed on account of wet grounds.

Remy Kremer will be on the slab for the Buccos in the clash of today. He will be opposed by Sylvester Johnson. The contest will mark the last appearance of the Buccos at Oakland Orchard

SCHOOL STARS VIE IN PITT MEET TODAY

Tigers Beat Nats, Indians Lose to Red Sox in Intersectional Openers

NEW CASTLE FAVORED TO KEEP TITLE

By JESS CARVER

The cream of the scholastic track and field performers of the tri-state area stormed the Pitt Stadium today, seeking first places and records in the twenty-fourth annual renewal of the University's Interscholastic track and field championships.

A record entry, for the meet and one almost as great as competed in the inaugural scholastic carnival of the year at Geneva last Saturday, was on hand for today's event, 1,000 athletes representing more than 60 schools taking part.

NEW CASTLE FAVORED

New Castle High School's crack squad, which has been returned victor in the dueling for the team trophy for the past two years, rules a favorite to annex the honor again today, although West Virginia and Ohio teams are expected to cause the Lawrence Countians plenty of trouble and perhaps bring them to grief.

Inasmuch as the meet is of long standing, a wholesale toppling of records will come as a distinct surprise. However, three or four meet marks are in grave danger. Terrific assaults will be made on the present standards in the javelin, shot, half-mile and the mile relay.

So keen does the competition in the 100-yard dash loom, with Bryor, of Ford City; Dooms, of Uniontown; Greenberg, of New Castle; Binstock, of Peabody, and McBurney, of Washington entered that its considered very possible that the 11-year-old century mark of 10 flat may be cracked.

Gangloff of Nant-y-glo; Muscavich, of Aliquippa, and Young, of Beaver Falls, are favored to set new marks in the javelin, discus and shot, respectively.

FOUR MEETS CARDED

Four other important scholastic meets are carded today. At State College, a large field is entered in the annual Penn State scholastic carnival. The Beaver, Mercer and Westmoreland County meets also are booked for this afternoon and in West Virginia, nine sectional meets will be staged, with place winners competing later on in the state titular meet at Morgantown.

The college squads also are in for busy afternoons. Pitt's varsity squad is at Morgantown for a dual engagement with the Mountaineers. Geneva meets Muskingum and Westminster and Allegheny clash at New Wilmington.

OPENER TODAY AT CHARTIERS

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The opening field day of the Chartiers Heights Country Club is in progress. Following this afternoon's regular sweepstakes medal play event, which is to be played under full handicap, a golfers' stag dinner, with Danny Nirella providing the music, is to be held. The field committee plans on introducing several new and interesting entertainments.

One scholastic golf tilt is on the books. Shady Side Academy is at Hollidaysburg High for a special match, which was slated to begin at 11 this morning. Hollidaysburg will visit Shady Side Academy on Memorial Day.

The usual Saturday matches and sweepstakes are on the books for all of the clubs today.

Yesterday, the McKeesport High School golf team won its second match of the Interscholastic Golf Conference, defeating Bellevue in a Section II encounter, 15 to 10.

Bellevue got away to a good start, but the McKeesport linksmen, rallied and with Caughey, Drago and Peckman turning in shutout wins, managed to finish out in front.

Due to the fact that several members of the Langley players were taking part in a City League baseball game, the match scheduled in Section I between Langley and Allderdice was postponed.

The scores of the Bellevue-McKeesport match:

Manager Mack explained today that Grove's inactivity for 11 days has been due to a severe cold.

Grove's absence from the Athletics's mound staff has resulted in many inquiries. He has made only three appearances on the mound since the season opened on April 14.

JUDGE STUDIES CARNERA CASE

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP.)—Some time next week Primo Carnera, the Italian man mountain, and Jack Sharkey, Boston's constant contender for the heavyweight crown, will find out whether their preliminary gestures toward a fight at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, June 10, were just a waste of time.

Federal Judge John Knox, who learned of the fight game through weeks of trial of Jack Kearns' damage suit against Jack Dempsey, listened to the pleas of attorneys for Madison Square Garden, of Illinois, yesterday, heard Carnera's legal reply, and took under advisement the Garden request for an injunction. He requested briefs be filed not later than Monday.

Attorney George W. Whiteside, representing William Saxe, himself an attorney for New York Madison Square Garden, as well as president of the Illinois subsidiary bringing the suit, argued that Carnera signed a contract with the Illinois Garden January 13, 1931, calling for a match with the winner of the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling bout, to be held in Cleveland, July 3, and at the same time gave the Garden exclusive right to his services until September. The injunction was asked to restrain Carnera from breaking that contract by fighting Sharkey here for Jimmy Johnston, a rival promoter.

Although Carnera had previously offered in the form of affidavits nine distinct defenses, including fraud, lack of equity, and subterfuge, the big Italian's attorney, George Sylvester, stressed in his argument the plea that the Garden's contract was forcing Carnera into an illegal act.

T. C., MIFFLIN WIN TITLES

Turtle Creek and Mifflin Township captured top honors in the twelfth annual Allegheny County borough and township elementary schools track and field meet at Schenley Oval yesterday afternoon.

Patton trailed Mifflin in the township section with 38 points, Mifflin getting 46. West Deer had 33; Wilkins, 20½; Collier, 12; Plum, 11½; Moon and Reserve, 8; Springdale, 6; North Fayette and Upper St. Clair, 6; Baldwin 4 and Hampton 1.

Allegheny	5	3	.500	Vocational	1	6	.166

Even though the day passed without a no-hit, no-run game being added to the scroll, the City League offered some hectic baseball competition yesterday.

In Section I, Peabody walloped Westinghouse and gained a tie for the section lead with Schenley, pushing the Silver Lakers down into third place. The score was 10 to 1.

In Section II, Oliver strengthened its position at the head of the column by defeating Vocational, 2-0, while Carrick was being defeated and Allegheny and South Hills were held idle. Mohr, hurling for Oliver, barely missed a no-hit, no-run game when he held Vocational to one hit, a single by Jenkins. Oliver didn't do much better against the delivery of Chapman, who limited the leaders to two safe blows.

MASTERS HURLS

Peabody did not call upon its no-hit ace, Martin, in beating Westinghouse. The East Enders sent a southpaw, Masters, to the slab, and he turned the Brushton entry back with two hits. Joe Ware was slammed freely by Peabody, giving up a total of 11 hits.

Connelley emerged from the cellar position in Section I by defeating Allderdice, 7 to 4, landing its first triumph of the season. In Section II, Carrick, which won over Allegheny Tuesday when Kurtz hurled a no-hit game, was surprised by Langley, the Corliss Station nine winning, 7 to 4, showing little or no regard for the reputation of Kurtz, who was touched for seven hits.

CARNEGIE BEATEN

In the W. P. I. A. L., McKees Rocks, although outhit, defeated Carnegie, 1 to 0. This was the only league contest played.

In non-league tussles, Turtle Creek defeated Shady Side Academy, 4 to 1; Edgewood downed W. P. I. D., 8 to 1, and Mt. Lebanon nosed out the Duke Preps, 7 to 6.

Latimer slugged out a 12-to-5 win over Liberty in a Junior League fracas.

Local Team Loses In Volleyball Play

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 9.—(AP.)—The Fort Wayne (Ind.) Y. M. C. A. team and the Division street branch of the Chicago Y. M. C. A. reached the semi-finals in the winners' bracket of the double elimination third international open volleyball championship at the University of Rochester river campus yesterday.

Teams remaining in the losing bracket include Hyde Park Department, Chicago; Lansing, Mich., and San Antonio, Tex. Outfits eliminated are Pittsburgh, Pa., and Tiffin, O. All are Y. M. C. A. teams.

LOCAL VARSITY NETTERS FACE FULL DAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Large afternoon awaits local college net squads today with all three home delegations slated for combat. The unbeaten arrays of Pitt and Carnegie Tech, seeking further laurels at the expense of district opponents, will hold the Steel City fort and in doing so will strive to turn back invasions by Wash-Jeff and Geneva, respectively.

Meanwhile the Dukes, rudely handled in various matches to date, will fare abroad in search of balm for wounded pride, Waynesburg being billed to furnish both hostilities and hospitality for Grant Siverd's troupe.

Pitt and Duquesne inaugurated formal athletic relations yesterday with a varsity tennis clash on the Bluff. The event proved quite painful from the Hill-topper point of view, for the slashing Panthers, led by the redoubtable Capt. Eddie Jacobs, applied the kalsomine to the Red and Blue to the tune of 9-0. Jacobs further disturbed the tenor of Hill court destiny by measuring off Andy Smeaton, brilliant leader of the Siverd host, 6-2, 6-1, and thereby wrecking the Edgewood youth's singles victory streak that had attained a total of 16 consecutive wins throughout the past two seasons.

Smeaton fought hard to stave off the inevitable in facing the Blue and Gold southpaw flash, veteran of many a torrid tussle with the greatest racqueters in the game. Jacobs, however, packed too many guns for the less experienced Duke performer. Andy encountered severe difficulty in handling enemy service and his own delivery seemed bereft of much of its accustomed punch—two factors that enabled Jacobs to spend considerable time to excellent advantage at his favorite position—the net.

In only one contest—the number four singles—did a Duquesne representative make fancy skirmish of it. In the fray in question, though, Regis Bullion, abbreviated Homesteader, displayed the prettiest work he has yet shown in competition to push Edgar Alcorn, accomplished Pittite contender, to 6-4, 9-11, 6-2.

Bullion pulled up from behind to grab the second set after his rival had to all intents sewed it neatly in the bag, but fast driving in the final canto saved a serious situation for the visiting luminary.

Pitt exhibited real strength from top to bottom of the lineup. The Dukes, still weak on forecourt play, missed numerous opportunities in singles. Ray Boland, Bluff strokesmith from Sharon, tore off several spectacular volleys in the No. 1 doubles, but otherwise the Hill crew was rather a washout in the two-man division. The summary:

SINGLES

Jacobs, Pitt, defeated Smeaton, Duquesne, 6-2, 6-1; Goodman, Pitt, defeated Casey, Duquesne, 6-1, 6-1; Cohen, Pitt, defeated Campbell, Duquesne, 6-1, 6-3; Alcorn, Pitt, defeated Bullion, Duquesne, 6-4, 9-11, 6-2; Boland, Pitt, defeated Boland, Duquesne, 6-0, 6-2; Vollmer, Pitt, defeated O'Neill, Duquesne, 6-1, 6-0.

DOUBLES

Jacobs and Goodman, Pitt, defeated Smeaton and Boland, Duquesne, 6-0, 6-1; Vollmer and Adler, Pitt, defeated Casey and O'Neill, Duquesne, 6-1, 6-1; Cohen and Alcorn, Pitt, defeated Berkowitz and Eisenberg, Duquesne, 6-0, 6-0.

Lawless Wins Over Champ

CHICAGO, May 9.—(AP.)—Young Jack Thompson, Oakland, Cal., Negro, is still the welterweight champion of the world, but he has yet to defeat Bucky Lawless, of Auburn, N. Y.

Thompson last night dropped a 10-round decision to the rough easterner in the final bout of the Chicago Stadium's first "$3 top" show, his second defeat by Lawless. The first one occurred before Thompson won the title from Jackie Fields more than a year ago.

Attempts for revenge were more successful for a pair of Chicago boxers, King Levinsky, the swinging westsider, and Harry Dublinsky, a promising young lightweight.

Levinsky outmauled Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City, Pa., heavyweight, in another 10-rounder, to wipe out a defeat administered him in Pittsburgh a week ago. Dublinsky employed an accurate straight left to defeat Tommy Grogan, of Omaha, Neb., in eight rounds, to square up for a decision victory previously won by Grogan.

SOUTH HILLS SHOOT

The South Hills Sportsmen's Association will stage two shoots on its range today, beginning at 1:30 p. m. The first event is a 100-target affair and the second a 50-bird shoot.

TRACK TEAMS TIE

The Shady Side Academy and Bellevue High School track teams tied in a dual meet at Shady Side yesterday afternoon, each scoring 61 points.

JOHNSTOWN, COLTS WIN

Another serving of good pitching brought the Cumberland Colts their second victory in as many starts over Hagerstown yesterday in the Middle Atlantic League, and enabled the Colts to keep in step with the hard-hitting Johnstown entry.

The Colts defeated Hagerstown, 3 to 0. Duke limited the losers to five hits, well scattered, while the Colts bunched as many garnered from the combined deliveries of McIntyre and Wertman.

Johnstown bombarded two Jeannette hurlers for a 14-3 victory. Galehouse kept the seven hits he permitted the Jays well separated. Both the Johnnies and Colts have won two games.

Charleroi and Wheeling indulged in a comedy of errors at Wheeling, with Charleroi winning, 9 to 6. Nine misplays were made by the two infields. Wheeling suffered a severe loss when Red Strader, veteran catching star, suffered a split thumb. He will be lost to the Stogies for three weeks.

At Charleston, the Generals defeated Huntington, 5 to 1. Marleau turning in a neat five-hit trick of pitching. Clarksburg nosed out Fairmont at Clarksburg, 4 to 3, and Scottdale turned on Beckley at Scottdale after being beaten in the season opener Thursday, 16-11, to win by a 9-to-6 score.

LAWLESS WINS OVER CHAMP

CHICAGO, May 9.—(AP.)—Young Jack Thompson, Oakland, Cal., Negro, is still the welterweight champion of the world, but he has yet to defeat Bucky Lawless, of Auburn, N. Y.

Thompson last night dropped a 10-round decision to the rough easterner in the final bout of the Chicago Stadium's first "$3 top" show, his second defeat by Lawless. The first one occurred before Thompson won the title from Jackie Fields more than a year ago.

Attempts for revenge were more successful for a pair of Chicago boxers, King Levinsky, the swinging westsider, and Harry Dublinsky, a promising young lightweight.

Levinsky outmauled Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City, Pa., heavyweight, in another 10-rounder, to wipe out a defeat administered him in Pittsburgh a week ago. Dublinsky employed an accurate straight left to defeat Tommy Grogan, of Omaha, Neb., in eight rounds, to square up for a decision victory previously won by Grogan.

HERRERA LOSES TO JACK BERG

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP.)—Jack (Kid) Berg, leather-slinging lightweight from England, has taken the first step in the comeback campaign he hopes will lead to another shot at Champion Tony Canzoneri.

Knocked out by Canzoneri in a recent titular battle at Chicago, Berg returned to the ring in Madison Square Garden last night and whipped Tony Herrera, El Paso Mexican, in a 10-round bout before little more than 8,000 spectators.

Although Berg's margin was decisive, the crowd booed the decision and gave Herrera an ovation. Berg piled into the Mexican all the way, shooting punches from all angles.

(Baseball's Comedian)

DETROIT, May 9.—This guy Harvey Hendrick couldn't have picked up more tough luck if he walked under a hook and ladder truck. He just got sold from the Robins to the Cincinnati Reds. That is what you'd call leaping out of the frying pan into a blast furnace. That Cincinnati club shows how bad the unemployment situation is. They have nine off days in every 10. They are so far down in the National League it will take archaeologists to dig them up. Ho, hum! We are playing our first series with the Tigers. So your Uncle Nick's address is Detroit for a couple of days, but you can get me nights in Windsor, Ont.

SCHOOLEY ASKS DE ROSA PAY CITY RENT

Contemplates Court Action Unless East End Chairman Meets Concessions Debt

City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley said today he had deputized his aide, Arthur Burgoyne, to collect $2,650 which Mike DeRosa, East End ward chairman and park concessionaire, owes the city.

Public Works Director Edward G. Lang started to collect De Rosa's rent. When he refused to pay the Director referred the matter to the law department, which presented the bill to Schooley.

Schooley said if DeRosa refused to pay the bill would be returned to the law department for court action. DeRosa, according to the treasurer, paid $850 last year but nothing since.

According to Schooley, DeRosa owes the city these amounts: For Highland Park stand and barbecue on Washington boulevard, $750; for refreshment stands in Highland and Schenley parks, $400, and for a refreshment stand and boating concession at Carnegie Lake, $1,500. The city took away the boating concession when it was decided to build a new swimming pool at the lake.

DeRosa, according to Director Lang, wants the city to buy the boats he had at the lake and credit the amount to his bill. Lang said the city didn't need a "fleet."

BUS CROWDING BAN SOUGHT

(This is the ninth of a series of articles on proposed changes in the Pennsylvania motor code, now pending before the Legislature. The stories were prepared by the Pittsburgh Motor Club for the Sun-Telegraph.)

One of the changes proposed in the state motor code, now under consideration by the Legislature, would strike a terrific blow at the overloaded buses now traveling the streets of Pittsburgh.

Under the present regulations of the code, no restriction is placed upon the number of persons which may be jammed into a bus or motor coach.

The proposed amendment reads:

"It shall be unlawful for any person to transport on a motor vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer, operated for the carriage of passengers, a load in excess of the registered seating capacity.

"Any person violating this provision shall, upon a summary conviction before a magistrate, be sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs or undergo imprisonment of not more than 10 days."

Five and Ten Cent Store Owner Becomes Friend Of an Odd Genius

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

John G. Rarick has made millions as a chain store operator. His wife, Jenny, shortly after their marriage, lent him $2,500, all she had when he was near failure, and out of this money he built riches. But Jenny resents his far-from-imposing appearance, and no longer feels real love for him. She plans the social education of their children, Jennifer and Avery. The thought is always in her mind that without her $2,500, Rarick would have achieved nothing. Her goading results in Rarick's agreeing to go East and to buy a magnificent home, but, secretly, he finds himself cursing her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER III.

As mothers went, Jenny would have stood impeccable before any jury. She wanted passionately for her young. She was forever baring herself to his scorn by asking in their name. She was a doting, gloating mother, fierce for her offspring, yet, withal, sweet with them. Many a night through she had sat unnecessarily, but tirelessly, beside the bed of Avery, whose first years had been precarious ones. The death of two infants had gone hard with her. Jennifer was her doting, her waking, and her sleeping thought.

Rarick, whose manner was not fortunate with his children because he was seldom at ease with them, could not have formulated into words, except in vague fashion to the effect that she spoiled them, the stubborn wall of opposition which he erected between himself and Jenny's plans and dreams for her children.

"It is as if you were jealous of them," she had barked at him once, hysterically, when he was opposing an indoor roller-skating rink across the top of the house.

No. No. No.

Without his knowing how to reach out a hand to stay them, except in vague fumings and consistent conservatisms, the entire kingdom of his household was drifting like a bit of land disassociating itself from the mainland to become an island, out into some high tide beyond his reach. Jenny and Jennifer and his boy, Avery, were on that island. He was back helplessly on the mainland; and Jenny, mark you, mind you, no otherwise to it, was to blame. The bitterness of that tore at him constantly, like a flame pulling itself off the candle.

Proud of Daughter

Jennifer, for a time, while she had been a little pupil at Mary Institute had been something of an eager student, with a hint of her mother's old air of desire to know, about her. Rarick had said little, but her school reports had been a source of deep private pleasure to him; and once he had carried about in his pocket an essay of hers, written on ruled paper called "Why We Love Ruskin." He had filched it off her desk and returned it there a few evenings later when he observed the child scrambling among her possessions for what might have been the essay.

Suddenly that brownish, rather studious Jennifer of those days back in the solid square house on MacPherson Avenue had slipped from her little-girlhood into a high-strung, mature-faced disciple of her mother's ambitions for her. The home in Westmoreland Place. Finishing school in Tarrytown.

The little brown jug of a Jennifer of the MacPherson avenue house was now the slip of a young miss, straight as a paper-cutter, with the sophisticated eves that for the life of him her father could never catch and hold in a glance.

And now that brown child back there, whitened because her freckles seemed to have come off, this Jennifer whom he was casting about, in his futile way, to save, what was left of her, for himself, must have her fifteenth birthday in a house on Fifth avenue that almost faced the Metropolitan Museum.

To think that he, John Rarick, who had once dreamed dreams no bigger than that walking trip through the Pyrenees, should be in a position to give her such a house.

Wonders About Family

Could his dreams for Avery, the boy, slip between his fingers, too, as this mother of his began to demand his rights for him? Would Avery grow up alien to a father who seemed to have no shred of youth left that would enable him the better to understand the youth in his children?

From what was it he was struggling to save them?

Success had done its share to teach Rarick himself new and complex appetites. He was a philatelist of elaborate and expensive tastes. There was in one of the pockets of his waistcoat, which was hanging over the foot of the bed, a famous Gnostic gem, heliotrope, engraved with the sacred name "Abrasax." A museum in Boston had been bidder against him for that gem.

There were in that same pocket, result of those same tastes acquired through his growing wealth, an ominous and luminous opal, a tiny agate ring with a runic inscription of the late Saxon period, and a transparent aquamarine cut en cabochon with the figure of a humpbull. In his library, at this period, were celebrated "firsts" upon the shelves; a Tintoretto, a Greuze and a triptych of the Cimabue period upon his walls.

What Jenny was demanding for herself and her children were the equivalents of the runic gems, the celebrated firsts and the misty Greuzes.

His children, even the small boy Avery, approached him only through the mother. The mother herself approached him as a

SEIZE LOTTERY DEVICES IN RAID

Thousands of coupons, cutting machines, paper and other paraphernalia which filled a truck were confiscated when Ingram police raided a house at 53 Winloch avenue, Ingram, at 1 a. m. today, and arrested a man who said he was Oscar Kreuger, 44. Charged with operating a lottery, he was to be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace James W. Watson today.

Arresting officers were William T. Shaffer and Louis Wagner, of the Ingram police; Special Officer William Appel and Constable Arthur Morgan. Information against Kreuger was made by Shaffer, who charged the prisoner was operating a baseball and automobile pool.

ZONING CHANGE BILL FOUGHT

The Civic Club of Allegheny County has renewed its fight against enactment of Senate bill 388 which would reduce the councilmanic vote on zoning changes over the disapproval of property owners and the City Planning Commission from three-fourths to two-thirds.

The bill, if made a law, also would eliminate public hearings of zoning change protests.

It already has passed the House of Representatives in Harrisburg, and is nearing final action in the Senate.

The Civic Club has joined the following organizations in protesting the bill: the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, Citizens' Committee on City Plan, City Planning Commission, Pittsburgh Housing Association, Allied Boards of Trade, League of Women Voters and the Pittsburgh Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

U. S. JURY FINDS 96 TRUE BILLS

The Federal grand jury, sitting for the May term of court, adjourned yesterday. Since convening Monday it returned 96 true bills.

Among the last returns was an indictment charging Charles E. Fredley, a former government prohibition agent; Harry Feisner and Edward F. Sweeney with conspiring to violate the prohibition law. The indictment charged them with possession of a quantity of whisky, beer and other contraband, seized in raids in buildings on Liberty avenue and on Third avenue, by prohibition agents on April 5.

Meyer Giffen was charged in an indictment with impersonating a government narcotic agent with intent to defraud, and John Henry Howard was indicted on a charge of forging and passing a government check.

800 TEACHERS FIGHT BILL

Eight hundred school teachers living outside of the city, met in Schenley High School yesterday and expressed opposition to the proposed bill, now before the Legislature, which would force all teachers in first class cities and counties to live in the district where they teach or face a loss of compensation.

The bill has passed the House, and is to receive final action in the Senate Monday.

If it is passed, several hundred school teachers will be forced to change their residence.

Jugoslavia Floats $41,000,000 Loan

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, May 9.—(AP.)—The government was informed by its finance minister in Paris that he had contracted a loan with a group of international bankers, headed by Union Parisien, involving about $41,000,000.

The money will be restricted to use in achieving legal stabilization of the dinar and for public works.

EX-BANK AIDE INDICTED

John D. Mammas, 33, a Greek, former assistant cashier and manager of the foreign department of the Citizens National Bank of Monessen, was indicted by the federal grand jury for alleged misapplication of funds of the bank, making false records and embezzlement. Approximately $30,000 is involved, according to the eight counts of the indictment.

Mammas was said to have left the United States last fall and was reported to be in Greece. He disappeared, it was said, about the time of the merger between the Citizens National Bank and the First National Bank and Trust Company of Monessen. Government officers, through the State Department, sought to apprehend him last December on a steamship bound for Naples, Italy, but did not locate him when the vessel docked at the latter port.

Foch Concludes, Tells of War End

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

Translated from the French by Col. T. Bentley Mott.

CHAPTER XLII.

Ever since the middle of July, the Allied armies, in a series of combats, had beaten and driven back the Germans; 7,990 officers, 355,000 men, 6,215 cannon, 38,622 machine guns had been taken—figures surpassing anything history had recorded up to then, and equivalent to several Sedans.

By their constant pounding they had sown among the enemy troops a demoralization bordering on insurrection. If hostilities had been continued, the Allies would have been able to accentuate and augment these emphatic results, but without changing their nature.

Several millions of German soldiers, armed with rapid-fire guns and still disposing of vast quantities of war materials, retreating across a relatively restricted area, would have preserved to the struggle all its former characteristics.

Disordered masses of men, the debris of more than 200 German divisions, were falling back in confusion, filling the whole countryside like a swarm of ants on the march. But they were armed with cannon, machine guns and rifles, and, thanks to these rapid-fire weapons, they were unapproachable and impenetrable until such time as we could bring up more cannon and more machine guns than they had.

Marshal Foch

These armed hordes, moving like a great scourge, left behind them a devastated land. On all sides there was nothing but destruction. Roads and bridges were made impassable and abandoned war material littered every practicable line of advance.

Hence it was most difficult for the heads of columns launched in pursuit to promptly bring up forces sufficient to throw this retreating mob into even greater confusion, break through or surround it; only the aid of powerful artillery could enable them to act.

But as the victorious columns advanced, they had to be supplied with food and munitions; this again greatly slowed up their rate of march, owing to the lack of railways and the condition of the roads.

In short, it was a case of well-ordered armies pushing before them troops in ever increasing disorder, gathering in prisoners and material as they went, the daily proof of constantly accentuated success.

Enemy Troops Revolt

We could have continued the campaign along these lines up to the Rhine, whence we could have started anew, after having established a strong base on the river and repaired the indispensable lines of communication—unless, meanwhile, some cataclysm took place among German masses.

But the disorder our armies had created in the ranks of the enemy and the cruel suffering they had inflicted upon him, rapidly increased and finally brought on insurrection. This feeling was spreading through the country, where the suffering of the people and the conviction that further resistance was impossible developed into revolution.

Famished by four years of war, there remained to Germany nothing but a disorganized army incapable of stopping the victorious rush of the Allies, and in revolt against the commanders, the country lay at the mercy of the victors. Germany signed the armistice without discussion, in order to save from the destruction of war what remained of her institutions.

On November 11, I sent the commanders-in-chief general instructions prescribing the conditions under which Allied territory evacuated by the enemy was to be occupied by their troops.

On November 17, the Allied armies crossed the lines they held at the moment hostilities ceased. On the 30th all the invaded territories (in France, Belgium Luxemborg and Alsace-Lorraine) had been entirely reoccupied. On the 25th I entered Metz, and on the 26th Strasbourg.

During this time I was making ready the approaching occupation of the Rhineland. It was to be divided into four zones, Mayence, Coblenz, Cologne bridgehead and the Dutch respectively under a French, American, British and Belgian general officer.

Allies Enter Rhineland

In practice, the inter-Allied character of the occupation of the bridgeheads could not be entirely maintained. Thus, the one at Cologne was handed over wholly to the British, since the French division which was to have been assigned to it was, through momentary necessities, stationed in the Belgian zone around Aix-la-Chapelle.

On December 1 the march of the Allied armies brought them into Germany; on the 9th they were on the Rhine; on the 13th they crossed it; on the 17th the bridgeheads were completely occupied.

From that date onward the Entente armies mounted guard on the Rhine. From its shores they beheld vanquished Germany at their feet; at the slightest attempt on her part to lift her head and cause trouble, they had but to make a move to stop it.

Posted there they enabled the Allied governments to dictate to the Central Powers whatever conditions of peace they might consider it proper to impose. The Allied armies had accomplished their task.

The tardy arrival of President Wilson in France, the scope of the problems demanding solution, the necessity of reaching, for most all of the questions, a preliminary agreement among the Allies, who often held divergent opinions, all required such a long time that, despite the good will and arduous labor of the treaty's architects, four months were required to shape it, and five to obtain Germany's acceptance.

Now, the armistice signed at Rethondes was only valid for 36 days. It expired on December 17, and on this date the Allied plenipotentiaries were only beginnng to reach Paris. The convention of November 11, therefore, had to be renewed.

Peace at Last

The negotiations for this purpose took place on December 12 and 13, 1918. The same delegates as at Rethondes met in the same railway car, the office car of my train.

It was hoped that the new convention would cover the time necessary for handing the preliminaries of peace to the Germans—a result desired by them as much as by ourselves; and, indeed, this would have been the natural solution, if the large military forces still on foot were to be cut down.

Unfortunately, the Council of Four could not solve its problems in time.

The second extension of the armistice like the first was concluded in the hope that it might cover the time required for the conclusion of the preliminary terms of peace. But these remained unformulated—in fact, the Allied governments gave up the idea of formulating them; therefore the armistice was renewed a third time. But it was now understood that this extension was to be the last and that no date was to be fixed for its expiration.

However, the Germans were required to at once give up all offensive operations against the Poles in the Posen region and everywhere else, and a line of demarcation was drawn beyond which their troops were not to advance.

On June 28, 1919, peace was concluded and signed in the Hall of Mirrors in the Palace of Versailles.

3 DRY RAIDERS HELD, ADMIT KILLING

Report That Agents Shot Farmer in Back Inflames Southern Community

COLUMBUS, Miss., May 9.—Feeling was intense in this section today as the government assumed custody of three dry agents who shot and killed J. Wales Land, 27, on his farm near here.

Land never before had been accused of a dry law violation and among the rumors in circulation was that Land, a young giant known for his marksmanship, had been shot in the back by the government men.

The three agents, against whom murder warrants have been issued, are J. G. Hendricks, Wiley Wright and Henry Furr.

DEATH CLIMAXES CLEANUP

The shooting ended a week's intensive drive by the prohibition raiders, after the death of H. L. Everett, federal prohibition officer, who was ambushed and shot last week as he drove toward Jackson to testify in bootlegging trials.

The agents reported yesterday's shooting to Sheriff John B. Williams here, declaring they had been forced to fire when Land made a motion to draw his pistol from his belt as they stood in front of his father's farmhouse with a warrant charging prohibition law violations.

BULLET THROUGH HEART

Land fell with a bullet in his heart and another in the shoulder. Two Negro farm tenants, the only other known eyewitnesses to the shooting, made depositions that a pistol dropped from Land's hand as he fell.

A coroner's jury, which was convened last night, failed to fix responsibility.

After wrapping Land's body in a blanket on the porch of his home and reporting the killing to Sheriff Williams, the squad proceeded to Aberdeen with four prisoners taken in a series of raids on the countryside.

BRIAND LIKELY AS PRESIDENT

PARIS, May 9.—(INS.)—All doubts as to the fitness of M. Aristide Briand for the post of President of France were swept away today by his conclusive victory in the Chamber of Deputies, which, by a vote of 430 to 52, expressed its confidence in his entire scheme of foreign policy.

The vote of confidence, climaxing two days of heated debate, means that M. Briand will go to Geneva next week to launch his battle against the projected Austro-German customs union and carry on his work in behalf of world peace. Whether he will go merely as foreign minister or as President-elect of the French republic is largely a matter of his own choosing.

Despite the fact that his friends and associates insist he will be a candidate when the National Assembly elects a successor to President Gaston Doumergue on Wednesday, Briand thus far has maintained an enigmatic silence.

'Extravagant' Wife's Slayer Found Guilty

WALLA WALLA, Wash., May 9.—(AP.)—George Schneider, 59, faced a prison term today for the slaying of his 21-year-old wife, Betty, with a cleaver, two years ago.

Defense attorneys contended Schneider, convicted yesterday by a jury which did not recommend the death penalty, had been driven insane by extravagances of the victim. Sentence was deferred.

Auto Injuries Fatal For English Actress

OUR HERO IS STILL IN THE BIG CITY WHERE HE CAME BECAUSE OF AN ARGUMENT HE HAD WITH HIS WIFE OVER HER BROTHER AND HE APPEARS TO BE LONESOME AND BLUE.
EVERYBODY SEEMS TO HAVE SOMETHING TO DO OR SOME-PLACE TO GO BUT ME—YOU WOULDN'T THINK A GUY COULD GET SO LONE-SOME IN A BIG CITY
I MIGHT HAVE BEEN A BIT HASTY—FANNY'S BEEN A FINE, SWEET WIFE AND PAL—IT'S EASY TO WALK OUT BUT IT'S NOT SO EASY TO GET BACK ANYTHING ELSE, SIR?
NOTHING—UNLESS YOU'VE GOT A GUITAR IN YOUR POCKET AND CAN PULL UP A CHAIR AND SING 'THE FATAL WEDDING' AND 'A BROKEN HOME' JUST TO CHEER ME UP A BIT

DAILY TRUE STORY

The Story

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Typist Agrees to Marry Her Employer

Theodore Hickson Eastman signed "THE" to the breakfast check and smiled.

He was going to be rich. No doubt about it. Didn't all the wise ones insist that the persons whose initials spelled something would ultimately be rich?

They did.

By living in the Seewell apartments one could run down and have his meals right in the building. It was handy. If one were broke temporarily — and what writer isn't?—he could sign his initials to the check.

But it was amazing how this sort of thing swelled the amount on the monthly rent bill.

There was work to be done—much work—and Ted knew it quite well. Magazine work. He was rather late with the short stuff. He had promised—but he was always promising.

He went over to his work table and opened the drawer to where a fat manuscript was cached. He lifted it out tenderly. There it was, two-thirds finished—almost. Well, more than half finished.

Now this wasn't the work Ted should be doing. It wasn't the work that earned his bread and butter and jam. It had nothing to do with the X— Magazine Company, who had given him his contract.

Given Orders

The title of this manuscript was one word. FOOLS.

It was to be a novel—and, at last, the great American novel.

Ted grinned. He had a sense of humor. He knew that tens of thousands of writers then, and before him, had started out to write the great American novel. But this was to really be the one.

The telephone bell jangled.

If it were any of the boys he'd nip right in the bud any of their plans to run up and bother him.

"If this isn't business," he said into the transmitter, "please hang up. I'm up to my ears in work."

"Horsefeathers!"

It was the booming voice of Sam Sartman, editor-in-chief of the X——— Magazines. Ted recognized the voice.

"Oh, hello there, Mr. Sartman. Thought it might be some of my sporty friends and I was trying to head them off. What is it?"

"It's two love stories—pronto, and listen, Ted, pronto doesn't mean next Thursday week, it means one story delivered tomorrow noon and the second one by Monday morning."

"But look here, Mr. Sartman, tomorrow noon—that's short notice, and—"

"Two love stories Ted—as I specified. Hop back to your word mill and grind 'em out."

"All right, sir. Anything in mind about those love stories?"

"Yes, one tomorrow noon and—"

"I mean as to plot, style, you know—"

"Snappy style, new stuff, original plot. We do not supply paper, pencils or plots—we pay you boys for doing that. Tomorrow noon."

Girl Arrives

There was a click.

Ted restored his telephone receiver to inactivity and stared at his manuscript, the embyro great American novel. With a sigh of disgust he put it back in the drawer and glanced at the clock.

Nine-fifty. Sally would be there in five minutes, if she were alive and had two legs. Sally was always on time.

Sally Garner had been Ted's typist for five years. She was a marvel. She almost knew in advance what his next sentence would be. She even helped with his plot situations in his serials.

Ted set out paper and carbons and everything in readiness for Sally. No time to be lost. He even opened up the typewriter desk for her. Usually he would chat with her for half an hour before getting to work.

No time for that. He had to dictate a love story and get it to Sam Sartman by tomorrow noon.

He filled his pipe and opened the window for better ventilation. He began to pace up and down the room.

A light tap at the door.

"Come in, Sally."

He knew the tap as well as he knew Sally's cheerful face, her reddish curls, her laughing blue eyes and her pretty but firm chin.

"Hello, Ted—feeling fit?" was her greeting.

She almost always greeted him like that. Ted and Sally had been brought up in the same neighborhood. He had taken her around to the movies when they were just school kids. Ted had lied two years about his age and gone to France with the last lot to get over before the armistice, and come home greatly disgruntled because he had not even heard a gunshot. Even now he wasn't 30.

There was no "Miss Garner" and "Yes, sir, Mr. Eastman" between Ted and Sally.

Sally laughed at him. Then she shook her finger.

"I told you yesterday that you were behind time on your shorts."

Ted took a couple turns, puffed at his pipe and scowled out of the window. Sally watched him narrowly.

"Snap out of it, Ted, please. You must. You've got a swell contract there and you're falling down and you don't have to. Listen, Ted. You've wasted too much time on that novel. It isn't paying for your beer and skittles——"

"If I could get some good beer——"

Author Disgusted

"Listen to me, Ted. Drop the novel for a month, get caught up 'way ahead. Now, what sort of stories does old Sam Sartman want?"

"Something a little better than anything O. Henry or Poe or Daudet ever wrote, and——"

"I mean, what sort—air, western, detectives——"

"Nix—just love."

He said the word with disgust.

"Sure, best sellers, love stories. And you've slighted them lately. All right, get your characters, he and she, the place, the meeting, the opposition, overcoming the opposition, sweeping away all barriers of misunderstanding, the final clinch. There you are. Go to it."

Ted looked at her in admiration, then sat down and shook his head.

"No can do—licked, Sally," he groaned.

Sally stared at him, more worried than she would let him suspect.

"All right, perhaps I can help you. Why not write about a chap who was smart but had no stability—he needed someone to keep him going, to keep him from wavering and from playing when he should work. Suppose he had always planned to remain a bachelor, but this—er—wealthy and highly educated girl came into his life as a stimulus—how's that? Go ahead, dictate."

Story Written

Ted got up and stared at her.

"Part of it's swell, Sally. Perhaps there's a story. I don't want him a fool—make our hero willing to marry when he finds the right girl, only he has never found her. And don't make the girl a wealthy highbrow——"

"What girl?"

"The girl who comes into his life at last and stimulates him to great achievements."

"Well, who shall she be?"

"Er—er—say, suppose she's a typist he engaged in an emergency from one of those agencies that send them out. And he falls in love with her."

Sally shook her head and made a funny little grimace.

"That's out—the arm of coincidence is far too long. Say, suppose she was his secretary and he had known her for years and suddenly discovered that she was a great help to him and she gives her notice and leaves his employ——"

Ted stepped over to Sally.

"For Pete's sake, Sally, you aren't going to leave me, are you?"

"Why—why, Ted, why say that?"

"Because—because that is it—you're the girl—the girl I want to marry. You've been kicking around under my feet for 15 years and I've just discovered that I love you!"

"Is this a plot, Ted Emerson, or are you talking to me personally?"

"To you personally—now for the clinch!"

And they did clinch.

"Well," Ted sighed, after the 'steenth fervent kiss, "now to grind out that love story. We've got to eat."

"Why not write about us—about this?"

"Great!" Ted yelled.

The story was on Sartman's desk at noon the next day.

FIVE AND TEN -:- By Fannie Hurst

diplomat goes to the conference table, her points carefully tabulated in the portfolio of her mind.

A man, if he loved them, could hold out only so long against his children.

He swung himself to a sitting posture on the side of the bed, and reached for a robe to slip on over his nightshirt. He was short, somber, gnome-like, and a little ridiculous in his nightshirt; and he never forgot it.

"I'll buy you the Ficke house, Jenny."

* * *

During the last six months of the six years the Raricks had occupied the Ficke mansion a man by the name of Dr. Felix Gerkes had lived on the top floor of the house. He occupied two rooms and a green bathroom with a frieze of mermaids over the tub. His meals, for the most part, were brought to him and served on a card table beside a window that overlooked Central Park, which separated him in a diagonal from the Museum, where he had spent 21 years in the archaeological department. He was also an Indianologist of first-rank repute, a man who had been frequently endowed with honorary degrees in the realms of scholarship and science.

He was the author of numerous brochures and pamphlets, a textbook on geology that was in general use throughout American colleges, had written three books on amulets, precious stones and meteorites, and was regarded as a foremost living authority on religious uses of stones among primitive peoples.

Considered Repulsive

He was a lean, shabby fellow, with a walrus-like mustache and a conspicuously prominent forehead, with thin stringlets of hair brushed sidewise across what threatened to become a bald horseshoe. His clothing, so loosely it hung, seemed to have no points of contact with his body.

The women of the household, even though weeks might pass without their so much as encountering him, and then only in a hallway or on the rare occasions when he dined with the family, thought him repulsive, and considered it disgusting of Rarick to insist upon having him there.

A curious bond existed between these two men. They had first met when Rarick had been directed to him for advice concerning a contemplated purchase, for his collection, of a necklace of banded and variegated agates, onyx, carnelians, and sards, attributed to the first century, A. D.

Rarick, who had just returned from Atlanta, where he had contracted for the annual run-of-the-mill output of two million cotton handkerchiefs of the three largest concerns in the South, sat in the musty little office of Gerkes, which was laid out at the moment with stone arrow-heads of a Navajo collection, and let the wisdom of this slow man flow against ear-drums that were still throbbing with the barter for the delivery of the two million cotton squares that were to be sold in eleven hundred and eight stores at five cents apiece.

Friendship Grows

The thirteenth richest man in the world sat in that musty pocket of an office with Gerkes until museum attendants began to turn off the lights and rattle keys. Then Gerkes, who loved talk, and who, deep in the midst of a discourse on amber deposits in the Stone Age, had found a listener, clapped on his shapeless hat and walked home with Rarick across the twilit park, depositing him at his door, without so much as a glance up at the pale splendor of the facade of the Ficke house, which John Rarick had purchased by sealed bid at sensational auction seven years before. That meeting was the beginning of an impeccable friendship between these two.

A week later, Rarick invited Gerkes to lunch at a downtown business men's club. Gerkes did not belong to the world of men to whom lunch is a social or business ritual. He either took his off a lunch-stand in the vicinity of the museum or cut slivers with a pocketknife off the small loaf of American cheese he kept in a desk drawer along with a box of Swedish biscuit.

His imperviousness to surroundings was colossal. He had once lunched with the King of England over a matter pertaining to the Jubilee jewels, and was unable later to describe the occasion in any respect except the contents of the discussion.

Here was a man who had a decayed-looking green circle on the front of his neck, from a brass collar button, which he was never to discard, even after Rarick had sent him precious ones, but to whom, on the other hand, a blemish on the crystal flesh of an art object was something to cause his own flesh to crawl upward.

Moves Into Rarick's

Some five years after these meetings between the two, Gerkes fell ill of a flaying neuritis, and, tracing him to the lair of his dwelling, Rarick found him in a small room in the high-up rear of a Twenty-third street rooming house, books stacked from floor to ceiling, and exactly three personal objects in evidence. A wooden-backed hair brush, a pocket comb and a tooth brush, sharing the dresser top with an assortment of Aztec arrowheads, proof sheets of an article on scarabs for the Encyclopedia Britannica, a copy of Plato's "Phaedon," William Langland's "Pier Plowman" and a World Almanac.

If Rarick had expected protest when he suggested the move from these quarters to the suite at the top of his home, nothing of the sort happened. With his imperviousness to environment or even to the sense of personal obligation, Gerkes took up residence under his friend's roof. One had to live somewhere. Money was something you shared if you had it, or you accepted if you had not.

Within a week the walls which Jenny had recently had done in yellow broctalle were plastered with maps and the furniture itself littered, as the lodging house room had been, with the story of the dawn of the human race as told by flint-head, ax and spear littering up the decorator's idea of a perfect example of a suite done in the manner of the Second Empire.

A Mystifying Decision

Lake Cargo Rate Finding Is Beyond Lay Comprehension
—Brief Comments on Local News.

The Interstate Commerce Commission examiner who heard the Pittsburgh coal operators' complaint against unfair railroad rates for the haul to the Great Lakes recommends that their petition be refused. Rate-making bodies not infrequently make decisions that are beyond the comprehension of the lay mind, and the examiner's finding may be taken as an example.

Pittsburgh operators have to pay $1.46 a ton for the 172-mile haul, while Southern West Virginia operators pay $1.81, or only 35 cents more, for 370 miles of transportation. It seems as plain as the nose on one's face that there is something unfair in such a situation. Either the rate from Pittsburgh should be lowered, or that from Southern West Virginia should be increased.

The examiner's finding is, fortunately, not neces- sarily final. The Interstate Commerce Commission has been known to reverse its examiners' decisions. If, however, it should sustain the recommendation there will be nothing left for Pittsburgh to do but to seek some other means of obtaining redress. The fight will have to go on until justice is done.

That was a good speech that Senator James J. Davis made yesterday in presenting the William Randolph Hearst trophy for marksmanship to the Reserve Officers' Training Corps rifle team of Carnegie Institute of Technology. It was an earnest plea that the nation shall not be caught defenseless if attacked, yet there was nothing jingoistic, no saber-rattling, in the Senator's remarks. He just talked common sense.

While Gov. Pinchot stumps the state to win pop- ular support for his legislative program for the control of the public utilities, Mrs. Pinchot is working to the same end at the regional conference in Pittsburgh of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women. Even Pinchot's foes will have to admit there is something very admirable in the energy and earnestness that he and Mrs. Pinchot are putting into this fight. And what makes it still more admirable is the fact that it is a fight for the people.

Director Lang, of the Department of Public Works, is entitled to a word of appreciation for his prompt decision to hold open hearings on the charges that I. C. Palmer, a department engineer, is associated in a business way with Mike Manella, a contractor who has received many city contracts. Lang's attitude stands out in pleasant contrast to the Mayor's secretive policy in regard to the charges that were made against Bertram L. Succop, former director of the Department of Supplies.

Tomorrow is Mother's Day, and it is gratifying to note that the observance here and elsewhere is to be something more this year than a mere beautiful gesture. Women's clubs, civic organizations and various bureaus of the government are utilizing the occasion to call attention to the frightful mortality of mothers in the United States from ailments connected with the bearing of children. Our maternity death rate is one of the highest in the world.

In Pittsburgh last year 74 mothers died during childbirth and 815 babies died before they were a year old. Conditions are bad throughout the country, and the pitifulness of it is increased by the fact that many of these mothers and babies could have been saved if they had had good medical and nursing service before, during and after the baby's birth. By calling attention to these things prominently in connection with Mother's Day there is hope that the maternity death rate can be reduced.

Credit is due Dr. C. B. Maits, director of public health, for the action he took several months ago to save mothers and babies when he organized a Division of Infancy and Maternity Welfare in his department. Dr. Maits expresses confidence that the 10 specially trained nurses of the division will considerably reduce the awful waste of mothers' and babies' lives. It is devoutly to be wished, for there is nothing more precious.

The first flowers to be seen in going out Forbes street are on the grounds of St. Peter's Church, at the corner of Craft avenue. They were planted with the thought of refreshing the eyes of persons going home in the evening after a day in the heat and toil of the business district. Seen just after one has passed through the drabness of Soho, the flowers make strong appeal. It is a burning shame that vandals have been stealing them.

The tulips, it is suspected, may have been taken by children. It would be well for parents to caution their young ones on this point. A lilac bush in full bloom was dug up and carried away Thursday night by someone who used a spade. The deed can hardly be considered otherwise than as robbery, and is a matter for the police. It is doubtful if an adult guilty of such a depredation could be restrained by merely appealing to his sense of decency and honesty.

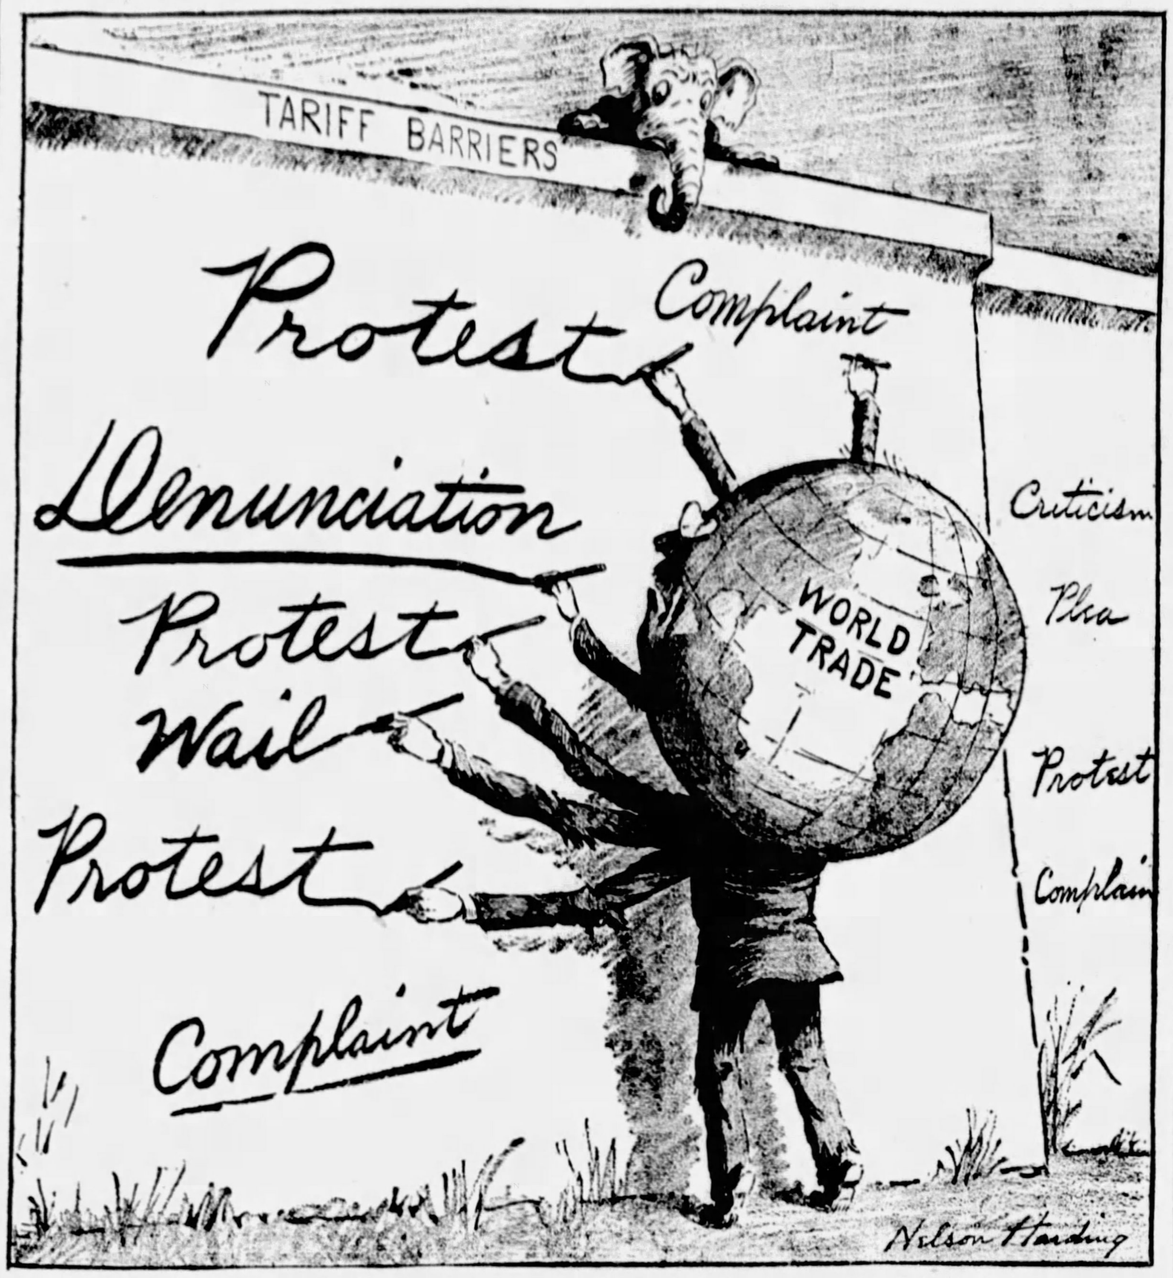
There are plenty of grownups, however, who steal blossoms because of thoughtlessness or love of floral beauty rather than for any other cause. They are the ones that drive into the country on Sundays and break off the blossom-laden branches of fruit trees. If tomorrow is a pleasant day they will be out in great numbers. An appeal to them to spare the flowers might not be in vain. There is a law that specifically prohibits such despoiling of trees and gardens.

The women's clubs and other organizations which sponsored Music Week in Allegheny County are to be congratulated on the great success of the community concerts held during the past week. They revealed local talent of surprisingly high quality. High school orchestras, church choirs and the various vocal and instrumental soloists who contributed their services to the exercises gave pleasure to many thousands of people and definitely advanced appreciation of and public interest in good music.

Fresh legal efforts have been started at Philadel- phia to prevent the use of voting machines in the September primary and November general election. The company which is to furnish Allegheny County's voting machines declines to say when it will be ready to deliver the machines that are to be used for demonstration purposes. These things are annoying but not discouraging. Goodness knows, though, we have every right to be impatient.

All Hands Writing on Wall -:-

By Nelson Harding

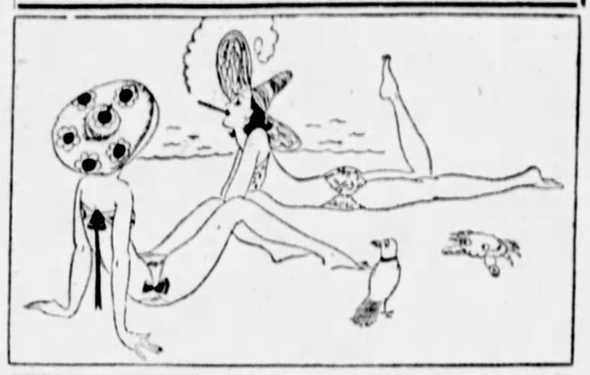


The barrier is strong and tall,
But there's handwriting on the wall.
Inscribed thereon by many hands
Are plaints and pleas from many lands.

The G. O. P. on top should heed
The world of trade's protesting screed.
But, judging from that puzzled frown,
It sees the writing upside down.

The Crab Is Horrified, the Sea Gull Shocked

But WE Humans Get Used to Everything.



TWO MODERN YOUNG "LADIES"

Exaggerated perhaps, but not so very much, are these two modern bathing suits. The crab from the ocean's depths is filled with horror observing the absence of material. The sea gull, as you plainly see, is asking himself, "What kind of mothers must they have had?"

We, their human relatives, look on, hardened, accustomed to almost anything.

"How use doth breed a habit in a man." Shakespeare knew. They say eels get used to getting skinned. It is quite certain that the Chinese to some extent get used to capital punishment. A dozen condemned would walk out, not manacled or controlled, kneel down side by side and wait until the executioner came along and cut off their heads one at a time. It was done all the time, and when their time came, they offered little objection.

In fact, it was once legal in China, when a rich man was sentenced to death, for him to hire somebody to take his place. Any number of dutiful sons would consent to have their heads cut off that they might get money from the rich criminal and hand it to their parents.

Great respect and love of parents in China; in fact, "ancestor worship" is the chief worship.

But let us return to our young ladies and ask ourselves HOW it is that we can tolerate what we DO tolerate?

That cigaret alone would have been enough to send the young lady's grandmother or great-grandmother into a swoon. And as for the "panties," or whatever is the right name for the last concession to modesty, and the little contraptions called "brassieres," you can only wish that some material from the big hats had been applied somewhere else.

We respect the crab, feeling as he does, and the sea gull we respect for his plain display of indignation.

But let us be grateful that WE can stand almost anything, for it seems we must stand everything, and happy he who can do what he must do.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Mrs. Solomon Says—

Go to, my daughter. How long will the Simple Wife continue to seek advice, and men delight in their "judgment" and boast of their counsel?

* * *

* * *

But the wise wife first DOETH that which her heart desireth and her wisdom dictateth—and seeketh her lord's approval, when it is finished.

The foolish wife asketh, "Dost thou find this way of doing my hair pleasing in thy sight?"

* * *

But the wise wife arrangeth her hair as it pleaseth her and asketh no "verdict" thereon.

* * *

The foolish wife saith, "Wilt thou ask me to the new show, Beloved? For, I am DYING to go!"

* * *

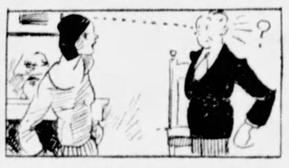
But the wise wife layeth out her husband's evening clothes and ordereth the taxicab. Yea, she purchaseth the tickets and ordereth the table at the restaurant.

* * *

And behold, it is settled. There is no argument—and no escape!

* * *

The foolish wife beggeth her husband to help her find the new apartment, and seeketh his judgment upon the wallpaper. But the wise wife consulteth her own wisdom; and when moving day arriveth, she leadeth him to his abode. And, lo, he is delighted.



The foolish wife donneth her new hat in doubt, lest it may not meet the approval of her lord. Yea, she taketh him shopping with her and seeketh his approval and commendation, upon all her garments.

* * *

But the wise wife locketh her hat within the closet and leaveth it there, until the milliner hath long since been paid and the bill forgotten.

* * *

The foolish wife courteth advice and criticism and approval. She asketh for a "ruling" and getteth it. But the wise wife maketh her own decisions—and asketh her Beloved's OPINION only when the thing hath been accomplished.

* * *

For she knoweth in her heart that that which is open to argument will be greeted with argument, and that that which is submitted for criticism will always receive criticism. For, how else can a man display his "good judgment?"

Byrd's Flight Over the South Pole

By Archibald Henderson

The conditions in the Antarctic make the problem of determining the South Pole a matter of very exceptional difficulty. Of course, modern radio equipment was an important factor in decreasing these difficulties. Through this means and time signals from a known meridian, the setting of the sun compass to any desired meridian is possible. Starting on that meridian, the plane was kept on that meridian, so far as possible, by the sun compass. Unfortunately, the plane was subject to a heavy drift sideways, although always maintaining a determined direction. By means of the speed and drift indicator, the angle of this drift was kept trace of and provided for, thus holding the plane roughly along the meridian.

Two methods had to be resorted to in order to determine the speed of the plane over the ground. The method to be employed, at any given time, depended upon the accuracy with which the plane's height above the ground could be determined. When this height is known with sufficient accuracy, the observation consists in timing the passage of some mark on the ground over the two wires of the instrument, whose distance apart has been set to conform to a scale reading elevation above the ground. The mathematical principle is simple enough, that of similarity of triangles; but if the assumed height of the plane is in error, this error will enter in the result in a direct ratio.

The difficulties arose when the height of the plane was not known. This was determined by altimeter readings and also by the known elevations of the plateau, which had been determined by Amundsen and Scott. The latter were subtracted from the former; but the results of Amundsen and Scott were not in accord. They were, however, the only elevation data available for this region and were entered on a data chart for the South Polar flight.

A second method of determining the plane's speed was resorted to by Byrd with good results. Three quantities, the false speeds forward and back, and the air speed, are set in a mathematical formula. From this formula the true ground speed ahead is determined.

In observations of this sort, dependence was placed upon the instruments. But the accuracy of the results depended in no small degree upon the experience and skill of the observers. Byrd and McKinley had had considered experience in these matters, and developed unusual skill in making the observations. They checked upon each other's results, using different instruments.

The position of the astronomical station at Little America had been determined with an accuracy of better than one mile. The clocks had been carefully and repeatedly checked, by means of radio time signals.

In the course of the flight the plane was placed on the one hundred and seventy-first meridian at parallel 86 degrees 13 minutes, and the sun compass set for a course along the meridian to the pole, computed to be 227 miles away. Two checks were had on the compass for locating the direction of the meridian — one a simple instrumental check, the other with Amundson's determination of the variation of the magnetic needle.

According to the official report of the scientific committee of the American Geographical Society, at some point in his flight Byrd came within four nautical miles of the South Pole, with the probability that he passed much nearer than this.

-:- LISTEN, WORLD -:-

By Elsie Robinson

I'm ranching near Sonora.

Nothing very unusual about Sonora, you might think—passing through. Just another old Mother Lode mining camp—spruced up. 'Lectric signs and stucco fronts and Talkies on the main street. Back of the street, the trails still winding sharply up into the pines and chaparral. Rotting hoists black against the sleepy, sun-drenched sky. Mining dumps half covered with wild-rose and manzanita. And below, behind old picket fences, tumbledown shacks, their gray boards deep in a thicket of hollyhock and lemon verbena, snowball bush, bridal-veil and clove pink.

Not much doing in mining now, around Sonora. Business not so good and not so bad—times being what they are. But if you think that a little matter like hard times is going to cramp Sonora's style, you've plenty to learn.

FOR HERE IS ONE GAME LITTLE TOWN!

Tourists and apples—they're Sonora's best crop when things are booming. What'll they be this year? No one can tell. Dry winter. Maybe it's raised Cain with the apples. Maybe it's raised Cain with the tourists, too. But Sonora isn't sitting back and leaving it to luck. They're going after their luck—

SONORA IS TAKING A CHANCE!

Nationwide depression? Market crashes? Unemployment problems—bread lines? Yes, they know it. Can't help know it. But is that making them take the count before the round is ended? Not so's you'd notice it. Burnham's Candy Store has moved—twice the room, brand new fixtures. Central Drug is putting on a new front—nothing like it anywhere—plate glass set in gold quartz. Old Victoria Hotel has gone modern Spanish—ironed out the bullet holes, tiled the floors, put in trick steel beds. Up at the Gem they've twice as many dishes on the menu—(hope they see this and fix me up an outsize apple pie!) And Dolly Glass—brave, blind, laughing Dolly—is scrubbing the lavender paint on her beauty parlor, seeing never a shadow ahead, only rainbows.

And next month they're going to have a rodeo. Maybe nobody'll come? Maybe everybody'll be too poor to come? Yeah—maybe. But at any rate, they're going to have that rodeo. Rider 'er, cowboy! Let 'er buck!

Out on the ranches they're doing their bit, too. Putting rock borders around the flower beds. White-washing the chicken house. Leveling up the road.

Taking a chance—I'll say they are. Taking a chance like game sports, for it's costing them plenty. Folks aren't rolling in lucre, up in these old hills. Spending five bucks is a serious problem. Getting it is even worse. Mostly our fashions are overalls and our filling is hamburg steak. But what of it? A fellow's spirit needn't wear patches, just because he has them on his pants. Suppose they do wear half-soled shoes to pay for those new awnings . . . suppose they do make the old car do again, for the seventh year . . . suppose they can't put on as big a front as some city folks—

SONORA IS DOING SOMETHING THAT MANY A BIG, RICH CITY HASN'T THE SPUNK TO DO—

SONORA'S TAKING A CHANCE ON AMERICA WINNING THROUGH!

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Love's Potency

The white soul said: "My mate must be
A soul as pure as I:
Unstained by sin, unsullied, free,
A wanderer from the sky."

A sad soul crossed the white soul's path;
Deep-dyed with sin and shame,
A wreck upon life's seas of wrath,
Weighed down with woe, it came.

With pity first the white soul filled,
And then the tender touch
Of love with benediction thrilled
The soul that suffered much.

And all its sins fell, one by one,
Like dead leaves from a tree,
Till fair and pure that sad soul shone
Through love's strange potency.

Text For Today Having then gifts differing according to the grace that is given to us, whether prophecy, let us prophesy according to the proportion of faith.—Romans, xii:6.

(The text for today is suggested by the Rev. James Allen Kestle, pastor, North End Methodist Episcopal Church.)

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 9.—My constant efforts to be somewhat of a dude date back to the afternoon I attended a religious camp meeting with Miss Etta Whipple and my grandmother and trailed to the mourner's bench. That night at supper, looking at me admiringly, Grandma announced: "His soul has been washed white."

Uncle Alex, glancing up from his plate, grumbled: "I guess they overlooked his neck and ears." That stung to the quick. From then on I began to sparkle sartorially. Most of the other boys only bathed Saturday night or when they were going to the city—in case of an accident.

I scrubbed almost daily, using a lye soap that would eat through a safe. In my hip pocket I carried a bacon rind to keep my hair slicked down. Sprucing up became an obsession. Locally, at least, I was a pale twelfth carbon copy of Beau Brummell himself.

One of the things I thought up was to sew a seam down the front of my pants' legs to give the appearance of being freshly pressed. I was the first in town to wear a spring steel coat lapel holder and the second to sport needle pointed patent leathers with bright yellow pull-on doo-hickeys in the back.

When breath perfume became all the go one could chin one's self on my breath. Was I a caution! And just because of an avuncular sneer. It was all right back yonder. Everybody knew my folks and were tolerant. But since I have been knocking around in the East it is different.

Whenever I sally forth there are people who glance at my garb and shudder as though they might have just seen a ghost of Lon Chaney or run smack into a gargoyle playing hookey from Notre Dame. Yesterday turning into the avenue from Forty-ninth street a mug, looking at my spats, cracked: "Pipe, white ankle kilts."

Anyone else can wear spats, mauve polo pants, monocle or what-not and nobody hoots. Let me wear anything out of the ordinary and every sucker I know begins to razz. If I were a mote picker I could certainly print nasty things about them. But it heats up my blood.

* * *

I appear to be as comical in one kind of clothes as another. On a Texas ranch they dressed me up in chaps, holster, cartridge belt, red bandana and six-gallon hat to attend a spring branding. When I cantered up on my pony and dismounted all the cowboys threw their hats in the air and began waltzing together. You'd think I was a sisie.

* * *

Here is an insult in the daily mail this morning that shows what I'm up against: "What a gay life you lead. Millionaires telling about their acidosis, starving geniuses detouring to your icebox for helpings of caviar, flappers tittering for your autograph, beautiful actresses sitting about sipping from serrated edged goblets and haberdashers waiting in the hall to escort you to their salons to select new designs in shirting and scarves. All of which is pumping your pulse as you read. But don't become hysterical. It doesn't mean you. It is just a quotation from a book."

* * *

My wife has to bear the brunt of much hurrah-ing about my giddy get-ups. The other evening at a dinner following a general discussion of marriage, someone yelled across the table at her: "Why did you ever marry?" And everybody looked at me as though I might be a kleptomaniac at a diamond exhibition, for goodness sake.

* * *

O' yes, there was another letter recently from Colorado. "My wife and I," it ran, "are parked out here in a one-taxi town where nothing happens but daylight saving. You don't know how you lighten the sorrow of our exile. When we can stand it no longer we get out an old copy of a Cosmopolitan and look at you dressed up for some party. And the coyotes, shamed by our howls, take to the high country."

* * *

Then there was that paragraphic poke in a Hollywood movie journal one time: "When Odd McIntyre with his red muffler stepped from a taxi at the Grauman Chinese opening the other night a deep voice boomed: 'To the exits, men, the mine is on fire!'"

* * *

Grover Whalen wears a red lapel flower and milk white gloves and he's a national figure. But if I carry a cane, I should be back pitching hay. And thus it thuses. Silly writing stuff like this, but it's a living.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Do you appreciate how fortunate you are to have a position?

Many men more gifted than you are out of work.

You think you are fulfilling requirements and so are likely to hold your job.

Your boss might tell a different story if he were to speak plainly.

Many men of merit are seeking your place.

They thought themselves as firmly entrenched in their jobs as you feel secure in yours at the present time.

But retrenchment came and you lost out or possibly additional duties were given you.

Perhaps work that is distasteful to you has been allotted to you.

At times you feel resentful and are tempted to object.

Don't do it.

The boss might find it easy to procure some one who could take on your work and possibly could do more than you.

Congratulate yourself if you are not one of the thousands who are anxiously looking for work.
